MABEL TO GET FULL SUPPORT ON "DRY" JOB

Expect Mrs. Willebrandt to Stay in Charge of Prohibition Enforcement

ALL POLITICS BARRED
Dry Organizations Bring Pressure to Keep Her from Quitting Position

Washington—Indications Tuesday were that Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt will remain in charge of prohibition enforcement in the department of justice. The full support of the administration will be given her in what may become the most colossal task of the government in the next few years.

Few persons in the government know the difficulties of enforcement as does Mrs. Willebrandt. And few officials have the record she has of refusing to consider political pleas and prosecuting offenders.

Mrs. Willebrandt has been considering the return to private practice. The dry organizations immediately started a drive to have her stay. It is through the assistant attorney general's office that instructions are issued to the United States attorneys.

The power to continue or drop suits, to press them vigorously or let them lag, has with unquestioned confidence been placed in her hands. Mrs. Willebrandt came into the department of justice under President Harding. Attorney General Daugherty insisted that this branch of the government's work be adequately free from politics.

Mrs. Willebrandt has the confidence of the drys, who would be first to attack her if she had compromised with law violators. She has had the unstinted support of Presidents Harding and Coolidge and now will have the complete confidence, too, of President Hoover.

Coming from California herself, she was an ardent Hooverite in the pre-convention campaign.

Her determined attitude toward law violators has with unquestioned confidence stirred up much opposition against her some of which is reflected now in congress and some of which came out during the campaign.

But it is a custom now for the drys to put their stamp of approval on officers who have responsibilities in connection with law enforcement and the fact that dry organizations are insisting that Mrs. Willebrandt stay in office is significant. It means that they would rather have her continue than have a successor of doubtful viewpoint appointed.

Also the effort to have all prohibition activities concentrated in the department of justice is largely due to the vigor with which cases have been prosecuted through Assistant Attorney General Willebrandt.

The treasury department, which has jurisdiction over the prohibition unit, is charged with the detection of crime and the making of arrests. The department of justice therefore is able to prosecute only those cases which the prohibition unit discovers.

The plan now is to have the detection of crime as well as the prosecution handled in the same office. It is not clear yet whether a special attorney general will supervise the operations of the prohibition unit when it is transferred to the department of justice or whether its work will be joined with that of the bureau of investigation, thus putting the whole detective and police forces of the department of justice together.

WISCONSIN FARMER INJURED BY BLAST

Stoughton—(AP)—A premature explosion of dynamite seriously injured Henry Reuter, 55, farmer living near Hope, when he was trying to blow out a clogged cesspool at his home Tuesday.

The dynamite had been placed in a steel pipe and when it exploded the force sent bits of the pipe in all directions. Although many small pieces of the pipe were imbedded in Reuter's legs, physicians did not believe the injuries would be fatal.

The blast tore away a part of the roof of a tool shed and wrecked a heavy galvanized tank standing nearby.

KRUEGER BROTHERS IN APPEAL FOR CLEMENCY

Madison—(AP)—Among 31 pardon applications being heard Wednesday by Gov. Walter J. Kohler are petitions of Frank and Leslie Krueger. These two brothers were sentenced to state prison for murder following the shooting of a deputy U. S. Marshal, who attempted to arrest the Krueger boys for evading the draft during the war.

SENATE FAILS TO KILL BILL FOR INQUIRY

Refuses to Turn Down Measure to Permit Kenosha-co to Spend $10,000

Madison—(AP)—The senate Wednesday by the margin of one vote, refused to reject a bill which would permit Kenosha-co. to spend $10,000 for a grand jury investigation of disorders in that country during the past year.

The vote against indefinite postponement was 16 to 15. Senator Thomas M. Duncan, Milwaukee Socialist, who opposed the bill, demanded a call of the senate to require absent members to register their vote. Upon suggestion of Senator Walter Goodland that the vote on engrossment be delayed, Duncan withdrew his demand for a call of the senate.

Duncan said he withdrew the demand on condition that the senate find out during the week how Governor Kohler stands on the proposal.

Under the present law, county boards may spend only $1,000 for such investigations. The bill, introduced by Senator Conrad Scheerer, Kenosha, would remove that restriction from county boards in counties which contain a second class city. An amendment to the measure was adopted Wednesday which sets the maximum at $10,000.

Opponents of the bill tried to affix four amendments to it, but their efforts were defeated. One by Senator A. M. Miller would make the measure apply only to Kenosha-co. One by Senator Walter Rush would make it apply to 1929 only. Duncan tried to amend the bill to allow only $5,000 expenditure. When his effort lost, he sought to make $7,500 the maximum, but that also was defeated.

The attack on the bill was led by Senator Glenn Roberts and Senator H. J. Severson, both Progressives. They declared the money would be used solely to employ private detectives to go into Kenosha-co. and manufacture evidence through hiring of prostitutes and buying large amounts of liquor.

NOYES IS RECOMMENDED FOR GAME COMMISSION

Madison—(AP)—Governor Kohler Wednesday sent to the state senate for confirmation the name of Haskill Noyes to serve the unexpired term of Eugene Wengert on the conservation commission.

Mr. Noyes was appointed to the commission by Gov. Fred R. Zimmerman in July 26, after Mr. Wengert, then district attorney of Milwaukee, had resigned. The senate has previously had no opportunity to confirm the appointment.

Because Mr. Wengert was appointed for six years, the term of Mr. Noyes, if confirmed by the senate, will extend to July 27, 1933.

TOO WET FOR SPRING STYLE OPENING PARADE

Because of inclement weather the parade of mounted police, boy scouts and fire and drum corps scheduled for Wednesday evening as a part of the formal Spring Opening of Appleton stores has been called off. The windows, however, will be decorated and illuminated. Latest spring fashion creations will be shown in the windows and are available in the stores.

Man Who Joined Army In 1914 Reunited With Kin

Port Edwards—(AP)—After a search of 15 years, Frank Hegg of this place, has found his foster father and four sisters.

Frank's foster father left in 1914 to join the army. He left a wife, four daughters and Frank, and it was up to the mother to support the family. Later, the mother was unable to care for the family because of illness, and friends had the children sent to the orphanage at Sparta. Three years later she died. The children were released from the institution and sent to homes in the state.

For years Frank conducted a search and just when he was about to give up he located a

Dies in Alabama

Atlanta, Ga.—(AP)—Atlanta Wednesday mourned Asa G. Candler, (above), a former drug clerk in a country pharmacy, whose faith in a soft drink formula brought him millions in the manufacture of Coca-Cola. The 75-year-old capitalist, civic leader and philanthropist died last Tuesday at Wesley Memorial hospital after an illness of more than two years.

The story of Mr. Candler's rise is a story of romance of American business. As the proprietor of an Atlanta drug store, more than forty years ago, he purchased the formula for Coca-Cola for a reported price of $500, and in 1919 sold his interest in the immensely Coca-Cola Manufacturing company for $25,000,000.

Clear Way For U. S. To Join Court

Geneva—(AP)—The International jurists, including Elihu Root, are now in accord concerning all sections of the world court protocol dealing with the American reservation on advisory opinions.

Mr. Root, however, is anxious to have the entire protocol carefully examined and made to conform to alterations in article four which concerns advisory opinions and it may be that the complete draft protocol will not be submitted before Thursday. It is understood that Mr. Root is cabling Washington as he naturally wants to get a text which will prove acceptable to the administration and senate.

League officials say they are convinced that the protocol for American accession to the court takes into full account the American reservations and think that it will satisfy the senate.

In supporting the idea of Sir Cecil Hurst of Great Britain, that consultations with the United States preferably take place before the court has received a request for an advisory opinion, several jurists declared that the court should be kept free from political matters and that it was much better to have the exchanges of views with the United States while the matter was still in the hands of the league of nations council.

SUPERIOR STUDENT IS SENT TO REFORMATORY

WALSH MAPS OIL PROGRAM AFTER CONFAB

Says Hoover Conservation Policy Is Much Broader Than Reported

Washington—(AP)—After a conference Wednesday with President Hoover, Senator Walsh of Montana, expressed his belief that the administration's oil conservation policy is much broader in scope than was assumed upon its disclosure Tuesday at the White House.

The senator said the president's program contemplated the granting of lease to holders of oil prospecting permits only in those cases where the permittees have made reasonable expenditures in drilling wells.

There are 32,000 permits affecting the public domain now outstanding and the percentage of the holders who have made such reasonable expenditures as contemplated under the general leasing act is believed to be rather small.

INTERPRETS POLICY
The policy of the administration, as Senator Walsh now understands it, also contemplates no leases of land adjacent to that which may be leased to prospectors who strike oil. The senator holds that the act of April, 1920, contemplated the leasing of such lands so as to bring about the development of fairly large fields in each case.

As a further measure of conserving the government oil in the ground the administration will grant leases for the drilling of offset wells on the public domain to prevent drainage of government oil through wells on adjacent territory.

Court action to test the validity of the construction the administration places on the general leasing act is expected to be one development of the disclosure of the president's conservation policy.

Senator Walsh said the outcome probably would hinge on the meaning of the word "may" in that act which provides that the secretary of the interior "may" issue permits for prospecting for oil on the public domain. The senator added that there had been decisions of the United States Supreme court construing this word when used in such a case to mean "must."

"If this conservation policy could be extended to privately owned lands as yet undeveloped, I would be heartily in favor of it," the Montanan said, adding that since 1912 he had worked a hardship on the public land states.

Recalling that there are approximately 20,000,000 acres of public lands in Montana, the senator said the drilling for oil began only in 1920 and that undoubtedly vast potential fields were as yet untapped.

"MYSTERY MAN" BOY IS BOUND OVER FOR TRIAL

Sheboygan—(AP)—Stanley Golechnick, 17, who, according to police, dubbed himself as a "mystery man," was bound over for trial in circuit court Tuesday, charged with attempted extortion on two counts and forgery on three. Unable to furnish $3,000 bail, he was confined in the county jail here.

Golechnick was arrested Monday when police learned that he had demanded $500 ransom from relatives of Dorothy Glaser, 17, co-ed at the Milwaukee State Teachers' college, for the student's release. Police learned that the girl was attending classes regularly.

James Leidin, alleged accomplice of Golechnick, also is held in the county jail, pending trial.

BULLETIN

Ocean Speedway, Daytona Beach, Fla.—(AP)—Lee Bible crashed into the sand dunes here Wednesday and was killed while traveling at a speed of 202 miles an hour in an attempt to set a new world's record in J. M. White's Triplex racing machine.

The accident occurred three miles down the beach on the north end of the measured mile course, the machine spinning around on the course and plunging into the sand dunes.

Bible, a mechanic, was killed instantly when the 38 cylinder Triple racer in which he was attempting to break the world's speed record of 231 miles an hour, got beyond control and crashed into the sand dunes.

A Pathe news camera man who was hit by the machine also was killed. The accident happened at the far north end of the course.

The accident occurred after Bible had negotiated the mile run at 202 miles an hour. The machine was demolished. A panic reigned among spectators in the grand stand as cars and an ambulance rushed to the scene of the tragedy.

Three Dead, Nine Hurt In Blasts

Mysterious Explosions Wreck Two Buildings—Police Hunt for Bombers

St. Joseph, Mo.—(AP)—Three persons were killed and nine others, mostly children, were injured, in two mysterious explosions which wrecked two buildings here Wednesday morning.

The first blast demolished a two-story brick building. The second, two hours later, wrecked by a building two blocks away, while a large crowd, attracted by the earlier blast, was milling about the street.

Both of the wrecked buildings were two-story brick structures, with grocery stores on the first floors and apartments on the second.

Police expressed belief the blasts were set off by bombers. They were seeking two men reported to have been seen leaving the scene of the first explosion shortly before it occurred. Reports that the same two men later were seen to throw what appeared to be a bomb into the other building also were being investigated. The men were said to have been driving a coupe.

Investigation also was being made to determine if escaping gas might have been responsible for the blasts. The explosions occurred in a densely populated residence section.

ITALIAN COUNCIL GIVES O. K. TO ROMAN TREATY

Rome—(AP)—The council of ministers Wednesday approved a bill which Premier Mussolini presented for fulfillment of the Italo-Vatican treaty for settlement of the historic Roman question.

Last Minute Bulletins

Denver—(AP)—Small towns and villages in the Rocky mountain region were marooned Wednesday by snow that covered highways to a depth of three feet in places following a two day storm. The storm area extended northward to the Canadian border, spreading a white blanket over Montana, Wyoming and Colorado. It was estimated that it would take at least two days to clear the roads. With warmer weather anticipated, it was feared the melting snow would again send streams out of their banks.

Constantinople—(AP)—That Leon Trotsky is neither dying or any longer a prisoner was proved Wednesday in an interview which he granted a correspondent of the Associated Press Wednesday. It was the first direct conversation that he has had with a foreign correspondent since he became shrouded in mystery after his arrival at Constantinople from Russian Turkistan. The famous beard and moustache are shaved off but otherwise the former war lord looks as powerful as ever.

Washington—(AP)—How the radio was used to broadcast information about electrical power by the California Electrical bureau was explained Wednesday by Victor M. Hartley of San Francisco, its executive secretary, before the Federal Trade commission at its resumption of the investigation into the publicity activities of public power utilities.

22,000 READY FOR STRUGGLE WITH CALLES

Clash Will Be Biggest in Revolt History if Rebels Don't Desert Cause

Washington—(AP)—Detention by the American authorities of any additional rebels who cross the boundary line from Mexico is considered likely by the state department in view of the Pan-American treaty which provides for the internment of individuals who rebel against the constituted government.

(By the Associated Press)
Heavy rebel losses were reported by the government Wednesday as powerful federal and insurgent forces continued to converge on Torreon where the next few days may witness either one of the biggest battles in the history of Mexican revolutions or a speedy disintegration of the entire revolutionary movement.

An army of 22,000 rebels was reported moving at Torreon while General Calles, commander-in-chief of the federals, was proceeding northward and 8,000 men under General Almazan were advancing from the east to descend on the rebel stronghold.

Rebel headquarters anticipated a decisive battle, but the government first showed down the rebels and then the insurgents would scatter northward before the federal drive. Government successes were reported at widely scattered points.

Along the border, in the heart of the rebel country of Sonora, a serious defection of Yaqui and Mayo Indian troops hit the insurgents heavily.

General Obregon, hitherto apparently supporting the rebels, staged a coup Tuesday and Wednesday was strongly entrenched at Naco which he took over in the name of the government.

MORE REBEL LINES

Rebel reverses in the east and west also were reported.

Fleeing before the advance of General Almazan, the insurgents evacuated Saltillo after looting two banks of about $60,000. The federals were hard at work repairing serious railroad damage caused by the withdrawing insurgents.

In the west, the insurgents, who had been driving on Mazatlan, at last showed down their advance and Wednesday were reported to have withdrawn their main forces north of Culiacan and Quila.

President Potes Gil, confident that the revolt has been crushed, has stopped recruiting in the army by volunteer organizations.

General Jesus Aguirre, brother of General Jesus Aguirre, defeated rebel leader in Vera Cruz, was court-martialed and executed for his part in the revolt.

Government circles said the rebel leaders were sending their families northward to cross into the United States. They held this as an indication of the collapse of the rebel movement.

EIGHT MEN SUGGESTED FOR MITCHELL BERTH

Washington—(AP)—Eight new men have been suggested to the department of justice for the position of solicitor general vacant when Attorney General Mitchell was elevated by President Hoover to become head of the department. They include Stephen J. McMahon, Milwaukee, manager of the Hoover campaign in Wisconsin.

Resigns His Rank

UMBERTO NOBILE

Gen. Nobile Quits Rank And Office

London—(AP)—The Exchange Telegraph company Wednesday morning said it had been officially announced at Rome that General Umberto Nobile, commander of the ill-fated Italia expedition, had resigned his rank and office. The resignation was accepted.

The official board of inquiry into the Italia disaster last week placed direct blame upon General Nobile for the loss of the dirigible and censured him for allowing himself to be rescued from the ice first.

General Nobile had a long and distinguished military career with the Italian army. He was an ardent Fascist and reached world wide prominence when he flew with Roid Amundsen in the dirigible Norge across the North Pole from Spitzbergen to Alaska in 1926.

That flight ended in a quarrel between Amundsen and Nobile and the Italia was charged with mistakes in the handling of the dirigible. The flight of the Italia followed two years later. The ship reached the pole from Spitzbergen but crashed on the ice and was lost as it neared King's bay on its return.

CONTINUE SEARCH FOR 2 HOLDUPMEN

Madison Police Hunt for Pair Who Held Up Two Wisconsin Messengers

Madison—(AP)—Efforts to trace the sedan used by two robbers, who held up and robbed two messengers of the state auto license division here of more than $12,000 Tuesday morning, of which $2,500 was cash, were being made Wednesday by police.

Cues that took them on fruitless searches to Mazomanie, Sun Prairie and Evansville, all in different directions from here, occupied their time Tuesday, and Wednesday Chief of Police Frank L. Trostle said a minute search of Madison was to be made.

Police learned Tuesday that the robbers had held their car carefully for the holdup. The sedan, which bore Missouri license, was found to have been kept in a garage here for several days preceding the robbery. Police are attempting to trace the known figures on the license.

Meanwhile clerks in the auto license division worked until late Tuesday night preparing notices to be sent to issuers of the 7,000 checks stolen asking them to stop payment on the paper.

A. C. Hartman, director of the auto license division, announced Wednesday the exact loss amounted to $122,465.25, of which $2,533.50 was cash and the remainder checks.

RIVERS RISE AFTER HEAVY FALL OF RAIN

Galena, Ill., Suffers Worst Floods Since 1916—Streets Under Water

TRAFFIC IS BLOCKED

Mississippi River Flood Menace Growing, Weather Bureau Official Says

New Orleans, La.—(AP)—Flood stage will be reached at every point along the Mississippi river between Natchez and New Orleans during April, said a bulletin issued Wednesday by R. A. Dyke, meteorologist of the United States weather bureau, who revised the forecast figures for both the Mississippi and the Atchafalaya rivers. The meteorologist added that the prediction does not mean any danger to New Orleans or any other places but that the levees must be watched for weak spots.

Galena, Ill.—(AP)—The worst floods since 1916 swept down on Galena Wednesday. Four feet of water streamed down Commerce and Main streets and was inundated. Many business houses have been forced to close and transportation has been seriously affected. Trains have been running through three feet of water. The floods were still rising Wednesday at the rate of one and one-half inches an hour.

The Galena postoffice was entirely surrounded by water and cut off from the remainder of the city. Rowboats and motor boats have been pressed into service. Railroad stations were also flooded and the De Soto hotel is standing in several inches of water.

For five blocks, Commerce and a Galena inventor announced he would try out a new speed boat of his design along the street Wednesday afternoon.

Business houses along three blocks of Main street have closed.

TRAINS DELAYED

Monroe—(AP)—Creeks and rivers near here, swollen by spring rains and melting snow, were causing flood conditions Wednesday, blocking highways and delaying rail travel.

A Milwaukee road train going to Plattville late Tuesday was halted at Gratiot by high waters and was forced to remain there overnight. The roadbed was reported covered with water.

The highways at Browntown and Dill were being swept with the overflow of nearby streams.

High waters in the vicinity of South Wayne caused postponement of a funeral Tuesday. The funeral service was unable to get the body of Mrs. Helena Hansen to the cemetery because of the flooded highway.

A report received here told of flooding of streets in McConnell, Ill., just across the border line but details were not available.

Families along the Pecatonica river bottoms, west of here, were preparing to vacate their homes if the water rises much higher. The river already was more than five feet above normal. Skinner creek also was causing some apprehension Wednesday when its waters continued to rise, aided by the rain.

Spensky creek overflowed Tuesday night and cut off traffic to Mineral Point, reports said.

REPORT LITTLE DAMAGE

Janesville—(AP)—A touch of spring-like weather which melted snow and ice and brought an all night rain, the heaviest of the year sent creeks in this vicinity out of their banks and brought Rock river close to flood stage. Little damage was reported.

Rock river rose two feet in 24 hours here and Bass creek at Afton and Turtle creek at Beloit were out of their banks. Gullies became filled with waters and highways in some sections were under water, while the Hayner school southwest of Janesville was forced to discontinue Wednesday when it became completely surrounded by water. Tuesday children had reached school in rubber boots.

Dynamite was used at Beloit Tuesday to break an ice jam in Turtle creek which flows through the southeastern part of the city and empties into Rock river. With the breaking of the jam the creek rose four feet in four hours to overflow its banks.

CONTINUE STRUGGLE OVER PINT LIFE LAW

Lansing, Mich.—(AP)—A group of senators Wednesday were demanding a show down on the wet and dry issue. They were grouped solidly behind a plan to get a bill providing life sentences for bootleggers to the floor, despite the overwhelming vote by which such a measure was smothered recently.

All Aldermen Seeking Reelection Are Nominated

LIGHT VOTE CAST HERE IN PRIMARY

VanderHeyden, McGillan, and Vogt Get Names on Ballots for Spring Election

All the aldermanic candidates seeking reelection were nominated at the primary Tuesday, according to an official count made Wednesday at the office of Carl J. Becker, city clerk.

Nominees for council seats from the Fourth ward are Aldermen R. F. McGillan and Joe Hopfensperger; Fifth ward, Alderman W. H. VanderHeyden and Charles F. Vogt; Sixth ward, Alderman Philipp Vogt and Fred W. Wieser.

There were no more than two candidates for an office in any of the other wards.

Although Supervisor John Tracy was the only candidate for county board representative from the Fourth ward whose name was on the ballot, the names of two more were written in, but which of the latter two was nominated was not known until a canvass of the vote is made by the common council.

Due to an oversight by election officials in the first precinct of this ward, the votes for John Doro, one of the candidates whose names were written in, were not counted. He polled 30 votes in the second precinct. The other "dark horse" candidate, Frank Winkler, secured 33 votes. Consequently if Doro received nine votes in the first precinct, he will get the nomination with Tracy.

With five candidates running for nomination for alderman from the Sixth ward, the vote in this ward was the heaviest. Alderman Vogt experienced no difficulty in outdistancing the rest of the field, polling 249 votes to 153 for his nearest competitor, Fred Wieser, a former alderman.

VANDERHEYDEN, FOSE WIN
Vol. H. Monaghan secured third with 100 votes; Peter Seiditz, 84, and Lawrence Brinkman, with 15, brought up the rear. Wieser's stronghold was in the first precinct, where he polled 110 votes. Vogt got 123 votes in the first precinct and 120 in the second.

Alderman VanderHeyden and Charles Fose, a former alderman, ran a close race in the Fifth ward, the latter emerging at the top of the list with a 174 total. Fose got 152 votes, Edward Minton 75, and Phillip Ottman 42. Alderman VanderHeyden showed his greatest strength in the second precinct where 101 voters showed their preference for him. Fose garnered 78 votes in the first precinct and 74 in the second.

The council incumbent from the Fourth ward, R. F. McGillan, enjoyed an easy victory. His total count was 217, of which 143 came from the second precinct. Hopfensperger polled 27 votes in the first precinct and 81 in the second for a 108 total. William Hawley cornered 32 ballots and Jerry Callahan, an ex-alderman, 27.

George Packard and Michael Quinn ran neck and neck in the First ward, the former getting 91 votes and the latter 99. They were the only aldermanic candidates there.

Open Earle outdistanced Alderman John Diderich in the Second ward, 62 to 45. Earle did best in the first precinct with 42 votes, while Diderich showed up best in the second precinct with 26 ballots.

Although Alderman Walter Gmeiner was the only candidate from the Third ward for a council seat whose name was on the ballot, the name of Max Bauer was written in 24 times, which is enough to nominate him. He got 16 votes in the first precinct. Alderman Gmeiner polled 95 votes, 56 of which came from the first precinct.

BUSHEY TOPS INCUMBENT
No particular interest was associated with the result of the vote for county supervisors, as there were no more than two candidates for this office in any of the wards.

L. F. Bushey, a former member of the county board, polled 106 votes to 82 for Otto Theissenhusen, incumbent. The first precinct gave Bushey 66 votes, while the second precinct gave Theissenhusen 63 votes.

P. H. Ryan was the only candidate for supervisor from the Second ward whose name was on the ballot, but George Miller received 27 votes for nomination with Mr. Ryan got 47 votes in the first precinct, while Miller did best in the second precinct with 17 votes.

Supervisor T. H. Ryan, the only candidate from the Third ward for the same office, was given 106 votes. The name of Joseph Beyer, former supervisor, was written in twice.

Supervisor John Tracy was nominated for reelection from the Fourth ward with 245 ballots, 165 of which were furnished by the second precinct. As was mentioned before, the canvass of the vote will have to be completed before it will be known whether Frank Winkler or John Doro will be the other nominee.

Showing great strength in both precincts, Supervisor Peter Rademacher easily outdistanced Andrew M. Ries in the Fifth ward, the respective figures totaling 260 and 142. Anton Koehn got one vote in the second precinct.

C. A. Heckert showed surprising strength in the Sixth ward, running away from Supervisor Fred Slevert 239 to 238. Both received their greatest total in the first precinct, Slevert polling 147 votes there and Heckert 217.

John Behnke and William H. Kreis, the two school commissioners whose terms expire this spring, and who are unopposed candidates for reelection, finished a close race with less than 100 votes separating their total. Behnke polling 1,111 and Kreis 1,025, according to the unofficial count. Both men, as the total figures indicate, ran neck and neck in practically every precinct.

The vote was one of the lightest ever here in a long time, according to city officials, approximately 2,300 persons going to the polls.

GRAND CHUTE ROADS ARE OPENED WITH RENTED EQUIPMENT

All town roads in the town of Grand Chute have been opened to traffic in the past week with two rented trucks and snow plows according to August Laabs, town chairman, under whose supervision the work was carried on. Mr. Laabs said that the trucks were hired Wednesday by the town of Greenville and would immediately start opening roads in that town. Several towns in the county sought to engage the trucks when the people learned that they were being used to good advantage in the town of Grand Chute.

APPLETON LACKS KICK, CHAMBER WORKER BELIEVES

City is too Well Satisfied With Itself, Alexander Karr Points Out

Appleton is too well satisfied with itself, in the opinion of Alexander Karr, educational director of the chamber of commerce expansion program, who spoke at the chamber's public get-together at Conway hotel Tuesday evening.

"This city needs more kickers," he said. "Kicking is a sign of life. Without kickers, a community can get nowhere."

"From what I have observed, Appleton is proud of itself, and that's a fine thing. But I also believe that Appleton is satisfied with itself, and that's not so good."

The speaker based his opinion upon answers to questionnaires he recently circulated among school students here. He said it was surprising the number of students who apparently were entirely satisfied with the city. The majority of them indicated they planned to remain in Appleton unless they were unable to find work here.

That they should be encouraged to remain in Appleton goes without saying, Mr. Karr pointed out. However, he compared this attitude with that in other cities, in which as many as 95 per cent of the students in some instances indicated that they hoped to leave the town as soon as they could.

Naturally such a movement would not be good for the city, but the fact that there is so much dissatisfaction in a city usually results in an attempt on the part of the community to remedy those ills pointed out by the kickers. And that is what a community needs, Mr. Karr pointed out.

APPLETON WELL LOCATED
"The development of a community depends upon three factors," he said. "They are soil, climate, and location. Appleton is well situated from the standpoint of all three."

Your soil gives you a garden spot here. Your climate is enervating, and you have the advantageous location of accessibility to water transportation."

"The latter factor, although apparently not appreciated here now, is going to be the most important asset in the development of this city in the future, Mr. Karr predicted. He said that the St. Lawrence waterway project under consideration for such a long time is sure to be realized, and that when that time comes, Appleton will be connected with the seven seas by water and will develop far beyond the wildest dreams of the city's most ardent supporters."

"Appleton needs more vision and more enthusiasm, and the chamber of commerce is the kind of organization that can furnish the city with these characteristics," he said. "It is up to the chamber to create public sentiment."

"Appleton is a conservative city—much too conservative for its own good. I sincerely wish there was more kick in the town. And seeing that kick is lacking, I should say that probably the chamber's biggest job is to see that this kick is developed."

William Davenport, director of the expansion program, outlined the needs of a chamber of commerce. They are active membership, adequate finances, and the opportunity for members to offer suggestions and take part in promoting the ideals of the organization. He reviewed briefly the activities of the Appleton chamber since its organization about seven years ago, showing that it has played a prominent part in the civic life of the community.

Prior to the talks by Mr. Karr and Mr. Davenport, W. O. Thiede, president of the chamber, was authorized to appoint a committee to nominate 10 candidates for directors. Five directors will be elected at the annual meeting next month. Mr. Thiede appointed A. K. Ellis, chairman, R. K. Wolter, George Beckley, Dr. E. A. Rector, and Paul Cary, Sr. Gustave Keller Sr., presided at the meeting.

LITTLE STIR OVER BADGER PRIMARY VOTE

Smallness of Vote Cast in Most Cities Only Topic of Discussion

(By the Associated Press)

Tuesday's primary elections in various cities in Wisconsin scarcely caused a stir in the political life of the state. In all save one of the cities holding elections the interest shown in the selection of nominees for mayor, supervisors, councilmen or school board positions did not mount high enough to demand attention.

In Superior alone the contest between Mayor Fred A. Baxter and "anti-Baxter" forces brought out a fair proportion of the registered voters. The mayor was nominated by his vote tally short of his opponent's by almost 3,000. George E. Dietrich, Superior attorney, polled 6,035.

In most of the wards or precincts of the cities holding elections the interest seemed to center on the smallness of the vote.

Mayor Herman Schuelko who received 3,881 votes stood unopposed for reelection at Sheboygan, but 623 voters chose to write Ludwig Larson's name on the ballot. Erwin Mohr, who was unopposed for the position of city clerk, polled 4,233 votes.

Eight candidates sought the nomination for city treasurer. Hugo Froehlich and Ernest F. Stolzenburg were successful.

Wilbur Erehm polled 3,361 votes for city comptroller and his opponent, Otto Mahnikke, received 942. Arthur H. Grubbe and E. H. Puhar took 3,075 and 1,124 votes, respectively, in the contest for city assessor.

RACE AT ASHLAND
In a three-cornered race, Richard Marx was nominated mayor of Ashland, succeeding M. E. Dillon, who ran second.

Not more than 3,000 citizens out of the 15,000 who registered for the primary election at Fond du Lac availed themselves of their power to vote.

About 2,500 votes were cast in a dull primary election at Kenosha in which councilmen, supervisors and school board members were nominated.

The only surprise of the voting was the writing in of Edward Weston and Charles F. Tiesen, "labor candidates," against Lewis W. Powell and James W. Blair on the ballot for school board nominations. The latter two were renominated by large margins.

A former mayor, as well as the present incumbent, were outdistanced by an alderman in the primary mayorality contest at LaCrosse. John E. Langdon had the high vote of 3,241. Mayor J. J. Verchota, who is seeking the reelection for a fourth term, ran second with 2,246 votes. Langdon and Mayor Verchota are to battle for the position on April 2.

P. R. Emmert, and Lambert J. Kaiser were nominated for city comptroller. Mayor Verchota and Charles Lang ran as "wet" candidates while Sorensen proclaimed himself a "dry." Langdon was neutral, he said.

PUPILS DRAMATIZE MAJOR ANDRE STORY
The capture of Major Andre will be dramatized in the south seventh grade at St. Joseph school Friday in connection with the study of the American Revolution. The roll of Major Andre will be carried by Andrew Heineman. Other parts will be taken by Carl Langlois, Werner Derrfus, John Krablien, and Joseph Langenberg.

Class Makes Books
Booklets based on Whittier's poem "Snowbound," were made recently in the eighth grade at St. Joseph school. The six best books in the class were turned in by Catherine Van Handel, Mary Doemer, Robert Liethen, Joseph Strebel, Laura Carroll and Herman Pruetz.

ARIZONA COWBOY AND HEIRESS BRIDE WIN IN "LOVE TEST"

Hollywood, Calif. — (AP) — After proving the truth of the almost forgotten song of other days, "Absence Makes the Heart Grow Fonder," George (Big Boy) Gillespie, singing cowboy of an Arizona "dude" ranch, and his wife, formerly Katherine Thorne, Chicago heiress, were together again Wednesday.

A two weeks "love test" prescribed by the girl's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne, ended when the third daughter of the former Montgomery Ward company declared that "for two weeks I listened to my parents' arguments, but found that my love had increased during the separation."

"There is nothing to add to the fact that my wife and I are very happy and expect to make our home here while I am completing a picture," commented the groom as the couple settled down in their apartment at 1733 Cherokee-st. and began real housekeeping.

"The perfect romance," says Hollywood; "youth victorious over poverty."

The perplexed parents of the bride were on their way to Chicago. They left a new automobile for the use of the couple.

The "fairy princess" of Gillespie's life met the "atmosphere cowboy" while she was on a vacation on the Arizona "dude" ranch.

Two weeks ago last Sunday they eloped to Phoenix and were married. The bride's parents promptly sought a warrant for the cowboy's arrest on a charge of kidnapping. The officers refused to arrest Gillespie when they found the bride had sworn she was 21 years of age.

PRIZE PRISON TO REPLACE MEDIEVAL JAIL IN CHICAGO

Ancient Bastille, Incubator of Crime, Will Be Closed in Few Days

By OWEN L. SCOTT
Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated
Press Association
Chicago — The medieval bastille, which for years has been termed by sociologists Chicago's crime incubator, is due for retirement within the next few days. In its stead is to be opened the nation's prize prison.

The present county jail here has been compared by criminologists with the worst pest holes in crime history. In it have been thrown indiscriminately the murderers and debtors, the hardened criminals and first offenders, perverts and mere suspects. Nearly fourteen hundred of them have crowded into 353 cells.
Some cells five feet by eight feet have housed six men 19 hours out of the day. For five hours, prisoners were privileged to cram into the bull pen to avoid the intolerance of the cell life.

Now all this is changed. There are 4,302 cells in the new jail, each with running water. This insures each prisoner a private room, almost with bath.

Besides, there are no bars on cell windows, and inside each prisoner has a bed sporting regulation pillows and mattresses three inches thick. Clean sheets are assured.

Instead of indiscriminate dumping of all prisoners together in a general cell block, the cells are classified.
There are receiving rooms, hospital cells, isolation cells and cells for debtors. First offenders and suspects are segregated from the criminals.

STUDY NOW OFFERED
Where jail prisoners now suffer an enforced idleness, they henceforth will have an opportunity to apply themselves at courses of instruction in a variety of lines of manual arts. The aim throughout is to make contented inmates, in place of using the jail to train new and more vicious criminals.

In constructing the new court and jail buildings, jurors were not forgotten. Hereafter jurors in Cook-co will be assured of three room suites, with two baths, a dining room, reception rooms and separate quarters for bailiffs.

The county has spent $7,500,000 to make possible this added luxury for its judges, jurors and prisoners. It expects to realize big profits from the venture by affording young offenders an opportunity to pay their obligations to society without becoming its determined enemies.

Life in the old jail had become almost unbearable in recent years.
There were numerous outbreaks among the prisoners. Bootlegging had thrived in the institution with prisoners going to trail drunk. One attempt had been made to blow up the place. Prisoners several times had set fire to the furniture in their cells.

Old jail birds will probably feel that they have struck paradise the move is made to the sumptuous new quarters.

ELECTRICITY MAY AID IRISH

"Electricity may help to stop the exodus from Ireland, according to those who have visioned the development of the River Shannon scheme.
With the distribution of light and power throughout the country, it is believed, many of the hardships that have caused Irish to go to other lands will disappear. This applies especially to the rural districts where electricity is now almost unknown.
The power company plans to educate the farmers and their wives in the use of labor saving devices to take the place of manual labor which is now so prevalent. The innovation will be of special relief to women, whose hard and monotonous tasks have driven many to places of easier work and more comfort."

GERMANS TRAVEL IN DINERS

With the abolishment of fourth-class travel on railways in Germany, and the increasing popularity of second and third-class accommodations, passengers have found a new way of making trips in comfort. They ride in the dining cars, so popular has become the custom that there has developed a dining-car-class travel.
Rather than ride in crowded second or third-class compartments, passengers purchase third-class tickets and remain in the diners during the entire trip. The diners are more comfortable than the compartments, and have smoking and non-smoking sections. Purchase of a sandwich or drink at a moderate price entitles one to a seat.

GRAVE STONES MARK MILES ALONG PATHS OF SPEED RECORDS

New Rate of 231 Miles an Hour Is Attained by English Driver

New York — Grave stones are mile posts along the auto speedway on which Major H. O. D. Segrave has now attained the blazing speed of 231 miles an hour.

Lives, fortunes, hopes, brains and just plain "dare-devil" recklessness have sunk in the relentless lunge for speed records during the last 20 years. While Frank Lockhart, killed April 25, 1928, was the only driver killed at Daytona Beach, lives have been lost annually in the meets from County Fairs up to the National Grand Prix events. These casualties have not stayed the contenders for speed laurels, who have forced the pace steadily upward from 30 or 40 miles an hour in the early days to a point where they now threaten to outrun the sun.

VANDERBILT EARLY PATRON
Rich men and young adventurers have teamed up in making auto racing records. William K. Vanderbilt was one of the early patrons of the sport. On January 2, 1904, he drove a Mercedes one mile in 39 seconds, or at a rate of 92.307 miles an hour.
Other outstanding records follow:
January 24, 1905, Ross, in a steam car, one mile in 38 seconds, or 94.73
M. A. H.

January 21, Mac Donald in a Napier, one mile in 34.25 seconds—104.65 miles an hour.

January 26, 1906, Marriott in Stanford Steamer, one mile in 28.2 seconds—
127.66 miles an hour.

March 16, 1910, Barney Oldfield in a Blitzen Benz one mile in 27.33 seconds—131.74 miles an hour.

February 10, 1919, De Palma in Packard, one mile in 24.02 seconds—
149.875 miles an hour.

April 27, 1920, Milton in a Duesen-lorf, one mile in 23.07 seconds—
156.046 miles an hour.

March 19, 1921—Segrave in a Sunbeam, one mile in 17.665 seconds—
203.79 miles an hour.

Feb. 19, 1928—Captain Campbell in a Napier-Campbell, one mile in 17.375 seconds—206.956 miles an hour.

April 22, 1928—Beech in a Triplex, one mile in 17.345 seconds—207.552
miles an hour.

The record yesterday was one mile in 16.56 seconds, or at 231.262 miles an hour.

SOTHERN RECITAL SCHEDULED HERE

Noted Shakespearean Player Will Appear at College Chapel on April 8

As the foremost actor of his generation, E. H. Sothern has had a long and varied career in the theatre which ranges from light comedy to tragedy. With Julia Marlowe, he established a Shakespearean repertoire that has seldom been rivalled in the theatre. The fruit of his long experience he brings to bear upon his recital which will be given in Lawrence Memorial chapel, April 8.
It will be sponsored by the college.

His program includes a scene from "Macbeth," where Duncan is murdered; a scene from the "Merchant of Venice"; and some remarks on the romantic drama, with special reference to poems of Milton and Kipling.

Sothern has acted 10 important roles in Shakespeare. His first was Hamlet in 1900 and four years later he joined Julia Marlowe with whom he produced nine Shakespearean plays. For his production of these roles, Sothern made an exhaustive study of Shakespeare and his times.
He brought new light to bear upon the tragedy of Macbeth, particularly in the interpretation of the love story underlying the action of the piece.
Shylock was acted by Sothern with a Jewish accent. He regards Shylock as merely a villain in this comedy and not in any sense symbolic of the Jewish race.

SARGON 'TOWER OF STRENGTH' TO HIM

Attack of Flu Left Galger in Dreadfully Weakened and Run-down Condition

"I wouldn't have believed any medicine in the world would do for me what Sargon did. It overcame my troubles, increased my weight five pounds and gave me a new lease on life. My friends are all telling me how much better I look.
"Some time ago I had a bad attack of flu that left me in a very weakened and run-down condition. I lost strength and my energy was at a low ebb. My liver was out of order, and I was bilious and nervous.

My appetite left me, and I couldn't digest the little I ate. I never enjoyed a good night's sleep. I tried most every medicine I heard of, but nothing did me any lasting good.

"My son had obtained wonderful results from Sargon and Sargon Soft Mass Pills, so I decided to try the treatment. I knew after the first few doses I had found the medicine I needed. It seemed to take hold at once.

"I now have a fine appetite, eat anything I want and no longer have indigestion or bilious spells.
My sleep is sound and restful. Sar-gon has proved a tower of strength to me and I'm like a different man.

"I took Sargon Soft Mass Pills along with Sargon, and they are different from anything of the kind I ever took. They overcame my constipation in an easy and natural manner without causing the least gripes or nausea. I will never be without them.

"The Sargon treatment seemed to fit my case exactly. It's just wonderful."

The above statement was made recently by Peter Galger, of 535 Homer Ave., Cudahy, Wis. Mr. Gal-ger is employed by the Cudahy Packing Co. and is well known and highly respected.

SPORTS NEWS OF NEENAH AND MENASHA SOCIETY

KRUEGER CALLED ONE OF BEST BETS ON HOCKEY SQUAD

Neenah Youth Wins Praise from University Sports Director

Neenah—Gilbert Krueger of Neenah, member of the University of Wisconsin hockey team, has been recommended by John G. Farquhar, director of winter sports, for conference honors, according to a letter received Tuesday by Hugo Krueger, his father. The director said Krueger is one of the finest hockey players he ever had under his control. The director said in this connection as a sportsman of the very highest degree. Although weighing about 115 pounds, he is absolutely full of fight and his value to our team this year has been greatly underestimated by the general public, and only I myself, know how much I appreciate his ever untiring efforts. 100 per cent condition and, fast skating and ability to stick 60 minutes in every game has made him in my estimation one of the best players in our Western conference. I do not hesitate to select him for the conference honor first team. I am hoping that he will be honored by the team to lead it next year and will be very glad to recommend him and leave it up to the boys for their acclamation. Krueger is a graduate of Neenah high school and won much attention while at the University of Wisconsin for his work in his art course and in athletics, especially in the winter sport program. He was high scorer of the season and made a record for his work on the ice during the last winter months. He has been recommended by Coach Murphy as coxswain in the University shell events and will start training early in the spring.

PICK EIGHT MEN FOR TOURNEY TEAM

Jorgenson Makes Selection of Basketeers for District Meet

Neenah—Following the practice of the high school basketball squad, Coach Ole Jorgenson on Tuesday evening selected the eight men who are to represent the school in the district tournament. Thursday afternoon at S. A. Cook armory. Those selected by the coach are Captain Mitchell Johnson, John Schneller, Gordon Ehlers, Karl Gaertner, Howard Stacker, Leonard Neubauer, Paul Grogan and Robert Bell. The boys were selected on their showing in the season. If the team wins the district tournament it will play to Madison to take part in the state tournament. Neenah will play its district tournament game at 4:15 Thursday afternoon with Oakfield.

PLAN BOARD AUTHORIZES DETAIL MAP OF NEENAH

Neenah—Maps of the city showing the exact location of all buildings, were authorized Tuesday evening at a meeting of the planning commission. The meeting was held to consider a new zoning ordinance. At present the city is working under a tentative zoning ordinance which has been proven inadequate. The building code was discussed and a committee consisting of Alderman William Schmidt, Jr., Anton Nielsen and Engineer Frank Kellogg, Jr., was appointed to work with a special committee appointed by the council.

SCHOOL BASKETBALL MEET STARTS MAR. 22

Neenah—Twelve teams will take part in the annual Post-News-Sun basketball tournament which starts on the afternoon of March 22 and continues through to March 29 at Kimberly high school gymnasium. Tod Barnes, Joseph Beisenstein, Gerald Johnson, E. Hough, Mark Jorgenson, Gordon Hallack, Charles Neuhauer, Loyd Boelter, Everett Peterson, Howard Schmidt, Philip Hahl and Howard Olson have been named captains of teams which will be selected March 18 from among the 100 candidates for places.

CLOSE PAPERMILL TO PERMIT REPAIR WORK

Neenah—Repair work on the Neenah mill of the Kimberly-Clark company has necessitated closing the mill for two weeks. The C. R. Meyer construction company started work Tuesday morning. It was at first thought the work would only require a day or so but the repairs will make it necessary to close doors for at least the two weeks.

CONSIDER REBUILDING DESTROYED STRUCTURE

Neenah—The board of public works will meet Thursday evening in special session to consider the possibility of rebuilding the Sherry building recently destroyed by fire. The building is in the fire limits. The board also will go over a communication with Wisconsin-Michigan Power and Light company officials to determine what is the best for the company to do in repairing its part of the pavement from which the interurban tracks are to be removed. SEE SENATE DELAY OVER WORLD COURT

Little Chance for Vote on U. S. Adherence Until December Session

Washington—(AP)—The "Root-Hurst arrangements" for American adherence to the world court has little chance to be taken into consideration by the senate before the regular meeting of congress in December.

The new formula, as worked out by Elihu Root with Sir Cecil Hurst, British jurist, and other members of the rules committee of the league of Nations, must be passed upon by the senate foreign relations committee before it reaches the senate, and Chairman Borah is unwilling to proceed with it, pending action by the league council, which meets in September.

Proponents of American adherence to the court, including Senator Walsh, Democrat, Montana, have been hopeful that the senate might be able to act on the proposal at the special session which begins April 15. He and Senator Swanson of Virginia, the ranking Democratic member of the foreign relations committee, both have assured President Hoover, who also favors adherence to the court, of their approval of the Root plan.

Although the proposal follows closely the language of the senate reservation to adherence bearing on advisory opinions by the court affecting the United States, it contains modification which make its reconsideration necessary. The league refused to accept the senate stipulation that advisory opinions should not be given by the court without the government's consent in cases of agricultural lands. Trust funds of the state from this and similar lands now total $65,000,000 and these funds eventually will exceed $120,000,000. The value of the land when the state got it, was placed at $300 and it will now yield to the state, at 25c a ton royalty, about $100,000 an acre.

RADIO FIELD DAY IS TAKING PLACE IN U. S. CAPITAL

Activities Are Covering Every Branch of Wireless Industry

BY ROBERT MACK Copyright 1929, by the Consolidated Press Association Washington—Radio is having its field days in Washington, with the activity covering every branch of the giant young art.

To the listener comes the encouraging word that prices of radio sets dropped from an average of $231 in 1927 to $153.50 in 1928; lawyers will find interest in the report that the supreme court of the United States will be asked to review the now famous WGY case and, in aeronautics, the air transport companies have agreed on means of radio aids to commercial aviation.

The radio communication itself still hobbles along with only three members, awaiting the appointments to fill the two vacancies that exist, expected daily from President Hoover.

The appreciable decrease in the retail price of radio sets was induced by the public's demand for sets and the resultant mass production. Reports to the commerce department from only 6,569 of the 32,159 dealers throughout the country show that retail sales of radio equipment for 1928 totaled $70,877,517. During the preceding years 7,737 reported sales of $90,785,050. The average number of sets sold per dealer, in 1928 was 12.5 as compared with the preceding year it was 51.

WILL APPEAL CASE The court of appeals of the District of Columbia has decided against the commission in the WGY case, involving the appeal of that station, operated from Schenectady, N. Y., by the General Electric company, against the reallocation of the station on the commission's station on time operation, has denied the commission's petition for a rehearing. B. M. Webster, Jr., the commission's general counsel, says he immediately will petition the supreme court for a review of the case and thus bring to the nation's highest tribunal its first radio case.

The action of the court of appeals was unexpected because the commission contended that the court had rendered its adverse decision. Before the case had actually been closed, Mr. Webster said he was surprised that the court should take the action it did after the commission called to its attention the fact that the rehearing was requested only by a brief in opposition to the commission's answer to one filed by counsel for WGY.

Only one day needed for the Air Transport company, Radio Communications company, the Army and the Navy, to get together with the commission in the allocation of 80 channels that have been reserved for commercial aviation. The commission is expected to adopt a plan of awarding these channels to the Air Telephone companies, some fifty of them to be used cooperatively, with each of the companies using a particular station at an airport contributing to the maintenance of the station. In substance the plan was concurred in by the Airways division of the Commerce department which has supervision over radio aids to air navigation; the army, the navy and the communications companies.

GOVERNMENT WILL HELP Broadly it is expected that the commerce department will take care of the radio aids to navigation, such as dissemination of weather information and the radio beacon service. There are transmitted on intermediate frequencies with two channels available for such airways. The transport companies themselves would for the present, maintain the commercial communications using two high frequency channels on each air way, one for day and one for night. These channels would be used for the transmission of radio communication for all those companies engaged in scheduled flying over established airways. Eventually, it was proposed by some they would be operated by the commerce department.

REGISTRATION OF POULTRY DEALERS REQUIRED BY LAW

County Clerk Mails Applications to Those Who Previously Got Permits

All poultry dealers in Outagamie county must register with John E. Hantschel, county clerk, before they can purchase live or dead poultry according to Mr. Hantschel. This regulation is provided by state law.

Last year, Mr. Hantschel said, 45 dealers registered but none have renewed their registrations this year as provided under that law. Mr. Hantschel was sending application blanks to the 45 dealers and he issued a warning to other dealers to register.

Following is the state law governing this registration:

"It is unlawful for any poultry dealer to purchase any live or dead poultry without registering annually with the county clerk."

"Every poultry dealer shall keep a record of all purchases of poultry made by him showing in detail place and date of purchase; the name and address of the person from whom the purchase was made together with a general description of the kind of poultry furnished. Such record shall be kept in permanent form and be open to inspection at all reasonable times to any district attorney, assistant district attorney,

Daily Lenten Thought

BY WILLIAM E. GILROY, D. D.
A great churchman once said that one of the largest churches today is the church outside of the churches. Without discussing why so many people who mean well, and who live well, are not definitely linked up with some church, one may recognize that this is true. There is in the world a great deal of unconventional religion and much of it is quite genuine in spirit and in expression.

Some of this unconventional religion is manifested outside of the churches because many men have the same spirit and way of viewing the matter that Lincoln had. Lincoln's famous declaration of his will-ness to join a church that would put over its portals the great matter of love to God and to man as the simple test of membership, expressed what is still in the minds of many people.

But churches since Lincoln's day have changed very greatly in this matter of orthodoxy and conformity to elaborate creeds. Most churches today would accept in membership a man of Lincoln's type who frankly stated his difficulty with the creeds, but who equally emphasized his purpose to live according to the law of Christ.

It is unfortunate that all whose lives are constructively Christian in purpose are not definitely associated with the churches, but the fault does not rest entirely with individuals.

The churches will have to lay increasing stress upon the things that Jesus made pre-eminent. Living is chiefly a matter of loving.

SEA SKIPPER SEWS FOR BABY DAUGHTER

Tampa, Fla. — (AP) — The secret hobby of the rugged commander of the Scottsburg, largest cargo ship of the United States shipping board, is a secret no more. Capt. W. H. Stone sews fluffy caps and lingness to join a church that would put over its portals the great matter of love to God and to man as the simple test of membership, expressed what is still in the minds of many people.

But churches since Lincoln's day have changed very greatly in this matter of orthodoxy and conformity to elaborate creeds. Most churches today would accept in membership a man of Lincoln's type who frankly stated his difficulty with the creeds, but who equally emphasized his purpose to live according to the law of Christ.

It is unfortunate that all whose lives are constructively Christian in purpose are not definitely associated with the churches, but the fault does not rest entirely with individuals.

PROPPING UP OUR COURTS

"The first step in law enforcement," President Hoover tells the American press, "is adequate organization of our judicial and enforcement systems." He, therefore, proposes a thorough overhauling. He will "critically consider the entire federal machinery of justice, the re-distribution of its functions, the simplification of its procedure, the provision of additional special tribunals, the better selection of juries, the more effective organization of our agencies of investigation and prosecution."

This, he adds, will naturally include consideration of the method of enforcing the prohibition amendment and the abuses which have grown up under it. Also enforcement of the narcotic laws, the immigration laws, the laws against restraint of trade and other matters of federal jurisdiction. This, needless to say, is a large order. It is probably as ambitious a program as any president has undertaken in half a century. And intelligent observers may agree that it needs doing as much as anything has needed in half a century.

It is almost literally true that the American system of justice has broken down. Our courts are not functioning as they should. The whole mechanism, from investigation and police work to prison management, is under fire. And this not only in the federal branch of justice, but in the state, county and municipal branches. It may be said that this is a task for lawyers. So it is—in detail. But the American bar has failed to face the crisis, and grasp its opportunity. Perhaps it requires a layman, with an engineer's training and viewpoint, to direct the job, with expert legal technicians to assist him.

AGE OF LEISURE

A statistician shows that it takes only 30 per cent as many persons today to produce the same number of automobiles as it did in 1914. To produce the same number of tires it takes only 40 per cent as many persons; the same number of cigarettes and cigars, only 42 per cent; the same amount of iron and steel, only 60 per cent; the same amount of stone, clay, glass and chemical products, only 66 per cent, etc.

We might guess that, speaking in general, half of us are now producing as many things for human use as all of us together were producing before the war, or that the same number of people working before the war now produce twice as many things. This explains why it is that we are able now to buy better cars and other products for less money. It explains why we are able to live more comfortably and save more, and at the same time enjoy greater leisure, than ever before. And the process keeps right on. Production, wealth and ease steadily increase, and most of us get our share according to our capacity.

We are able to do this because of the progress of material science, and the invention and use of labor-saving machinery based on scientific discovery. Yet there are many people who suspect and deplore science, apparently thinking it an evil thing, even while they enjoy its fruits. Many of the finest moral and spiritual fruits, no doubt, are born of struggle, and flourish in simple and primitive life. But struggle, privation and simplicity are not beneficial in large doses. Too often they exhaust the body, numb the mind and stifle progress.

Who knows what flowering of the spirit may come from wise use of the leisure and opportunity ushered in by our scientific age?

PROFESSORS' SALARIES

College professors themselves are chiefly responsible for their low salaries, according to a committee of Yale professors, which has just completed a survey of the subject.

The professorial habit of increasing the number of professors in any given college or university as fast as new funds become available, says the committee, makes low salaries inevitable. Its report warns that such salaries will never go up until the number of professors stops going up.

The professors might well take a tip from organized labor. Union men long ago found that a surplus of men means a reduction in pay. The same thing, apparently, holds good in the cloistered halls of higher learning.

FEMINISM IN THE CHURCHES

Feminism, with its insistence on the equality of the sexes, has reached the Presbyterian church. At a recent session of the general council in Philadelphia, that body adopted a proposal that hereafter women be granted equal authority with men in the government of the Presbyterian church in the United States. If this overture is approved by the general assembly in May, it will become effective at once.

The proposed change would give women the right to sit in all the courts, executive and administrative bodies of the church, including local sessions, Presbyteries, synods and the general assembly. It would also allow them to serve as elders, evangelists and ministers.

Before taking this step, the council, through a special committee, conducted a thorough investigation of the entire status of women in the churches. The committee was unanimous in its recommendation for equality, asserting that it found no scriptural authority for the present discrimination against women. It found that to give them entire equality with men was "just, right and Christian."

In this day of political and social equality or near-equality for women, it is strange that religious groups should have lagged so far behind in the feminist movement. To have so important a church as the Presbyterian put an end to this discrimination is probably of far-reaching importance. St. Paul might disapprove of the idea, but it certainly is in line with modern thought and action.

BETTER EXPRESS SERVICE

The government, in its gradual process of unloading business burdens assumed during the war, has finally got rid of the express business. The American Express company, the government-operated concern which was a consolidation of the old private companies, now becomes the Railway Express Agency, Inc. This company is organized, owned and operated by the carriers themselves, instead of outside concerns like the old Adams, American and Wells, Fargo Express companies.

This is a development that will give general satisfaction. American business prefers that such services shall be rendered by private enterprise rather than the government, and the railroads are the natural agencies for handling it.

Let it not be forgotten, however, that governmental operation has served a good purpose. Driven by war necessity, it unified a business which had previously been on a loose, competitive basis lacking efficiency. Centralized management and uniform methods made the express service more effective. There is practical proof of this improvement in the fact that the government parcel post has taken so little of the express business.

Now, as private enterprise takes over the Express company resources and functions, it wisely preserves this centralized control. The public will probably notice little difference, but will naturally expect some further improvements in service as the carriers readjust themselves to the situation.

AN AVERAGE ROBBERY NETS $30.75

Despite the large-scale holdups and robberies that are reported daily, Warden Lewis E. Laves of Sing Sing prison doesn't believe that crime pays. The warden studied some figures in his penitentiary the other day, and discovered that the average robbery, during the year 1927, netted precisely $30.75. Sentences for these robberies, in turn, averaged better than 13 years apiece.

To be sure, these figures were taken from records of convicts—the men who got caught. If the figures of those who escaped were added in, the profits might average higher and the sentences lower. But it's a good indication, just the same. Crime isn't, after all, very profitable.

It was a lonely road. He stood before her, trembling with angry passion. "Is there nothing I can do or say that will move you?" he said between clenched teeth.

He glared at her, so silent, so lovely, so hard. She was beautiful—slender with a catlike sleekness and that air of simplicity that makes men lose their heads and get into debt.

He paced up and down before her in the gathering dusk, a wild light in his eye. Suddenly he whirled and seized her roughly—she did not even shudder.

THE FRENCH PACT
One hundred and fifty-one years ago today, the Marquis de Noailles, French ambassador in London, announced to the British government that his country recognized the independence of the struggling American colonies, and that it had formed a treaty of friendship and commerce with them.

The treaty had actually been signed several months before. Immediately after the surrender of Burgoyne at Saratoga had proved that the American cause was not altogether hopeless.

War-weary America received the news of French aid with great enthusiasm. It was received with other emotions in Europe. Lord Stormont, British ambassador to France, left Paris immediately, without informing the French government of his intention. And Spain, whose old American colonial possessions gave her a finger in the American pie, likewise resented the treaty.

Within a month France and England were at war and Spain was kept friendly only by a secret treaty, which promised that France would recognize United States dominion only as far west as the Mississippi river.

FOODS THAT MAKE THE NOSE WATER

Another good reason why we should use the terms CRI and never the term COLD is that there are so many other factors than the debatable one of cold and wet that may cause the symptoms of coryza, and if one is so dumb and unconcerned as to assume at the outset that the coryza is a "cold," there isn't much chance of a real diagnosis being made.

Where the trouble happens to be from some particular item of food, for example, it may be a great relief to discover that it isn't from the weather or a draft, after all.

A German complained of symptoms of hay fever which had developed since he came to the United States five years ago. In Germany he had had similar symptoms, but of short duration, whenever he ate herring.

On skin scratch test he proved sensitive to ragweed pollen and hickory pollen invariably when he ate herring. He suffered from a severe spell of sneezing, stuffed nostrils and coryza.

A young woman complained of hay fever which had recurred in May in the last six years, and became worse each September. She proved sensitive to oak, ragweed, and some of the grasses. But she also suffered from coryza in the winter time (when hay fever positively cannot happen) and this proved to be due to eating chocolate, peanuts or beans.

When one develops a rather sudden coryza, that is, a stuffing up of the nose, more or less irritation and sneezing, and a considerable watery discharge, all of which persists for a limited period, usually only a few hours, and clears up as suddenly as it began, one should begin to suspect that one has not taken "cold" at all, but rather that one is getting finical about some perfectly wholesome food or other.

A woman had suffered hay fever in August for the past 20 years; asthma now and then; hives whenever she had nothing else to occupy her time; queer sudden swellings of lip, ear, eye, a hand, a foot, from time to time; and migraine all her life. She had about everything in the way of anaphylaxis, had this lady. Finally she put on a beautiful coryza whenever she partook of pork, winter or summer.

A young girl who had been subject to hay fever from early childhood, began to have sudden coryza from time to time in the winter, and the coryza always cleared up as suddenly as it began. Anaphylaxis no doubt. Yes, sure enough, she proved sensitive to potato. Avoiding potatoes she had no spells of coryza. She noticed that whenever she ate canteloupes there followed a sensation of thickened lips, blocking of the nose and sneezing. So they took canteloupes away from the poor child too. In a whole year now since this girl was weaned from potato and canteloupes she has had no coryza and no hay fever.

Turnip, tomato, corn, cabbage, olives, beet, radish, potato, sweet potato, in fact nearly all the most delectable vegetables and relishes have been found responsible for coryza in some instances. Some foods may make almost anybody's mouth water but so dumb and dogmatic are our old time doctors and health authorities that a lot of folk never learn a food may make one's nose water.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

Books, Thankfully Accepted
A friend of mine has kindly offered me a fine set of books that belonged to a woman who had tuberculosis a year ago. Is it safe for me to read these books? (Miss L. M.)

Answer—There is no reason to fear the spread of disease in that way. If disease of any kind were so spread, every public library in the country should be closed at once, no matter about the fumigation rites some libraries still indulge in. If you hesitate to accept the book, send 'em to me—I'll be glad to have them.

Sneak Up on It and Gobble It Down
Please give me directions for taking flaxseed for constipation. (Mrs. L. S.)

Answer—First, gather your flaxseeds. Choose a bright sunny day for this, when there is little wind to disturb the flax bushes. Put on a pair of heavy woolen mittens with thumbs in them to permit a secure grasp on the seed. It is easier to pluck the seed from the lower branches first, and to ascend the tree by easy stages, using a double extension ladder with a cord attached to pull yourself up as you pluck the underbrush bare. Having filled your basket, seat yourself securely on the top section of the ladder, in the manner of a tobogganer, release the catch, and slide gracefully down into the garden. Now search the house for a teaspoon that is not in use. Fill it just comfortably with the seeds. Hold a beaker of water or something in one hand, the spoonful of flaxseeds in the other, and your nose if necessary with the other. Take a good breath, close your eyes, deposit the teaspoonful of seeds on your tongue and invert the beaker in such a manner as to chase the seeds down the oesophagus. As soon as you realize that it is all over, you may come up for air and go about your ordinary affairs just as the nothing had happened. Probably nothing will. But you see the idea is to take your mind off from that for the moment. If this ceremony is repeated regularly every day, it may help some.

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT C. PLUMMER
Washington—On the grounds of Washington cathedral, within a small iron enclosure, there grow one of the most famous trees in all Christian history.

It is the Glastonbury thorn—a part of the original thorn at Glastonbury in England, which tradition says was a growth from the staff of Joseph of Arimathea.

The peculiarity of the thorn is that it blooms irregularly. True to tradition, for which there is evidence running back to the first century of the Christian era, this tree occasionally blossoms on Christmas day.

In medieval times, whenever English royalty visited Glastonbury a bit of the bloom was plucked, placed in a silver box and presented to the member of the royal family making the visit.

The custom was revived in the United States in 1919 when the Prince of Wales visited Washington cathedral. Although it was the month of November, the tree shot forth two or three blossoms. They were plucked, placed in a silver box and presented the price by the bishop of Washington on the day of his visit. It was on the occasion that the Prince of Wales planted a tree near the peace cross at the cathedral which is marked by a bronze tablet.

MANY OF THEM

The Glastonbury thorn, however, is not the only plant material of historic interest to be found in the cathedral gardens. There are others, and in great abundance.

Ivy from Canterbury cathedral grows there along with some cedars brought from Lebanon 25 years ago, which are in the bishop's garden. There is an ancient yew from Port Royal, Va., and a great pine, said to be one of the largest trees ever transplanted in America. Six picturesque holly trees reputed over

NAVAL SUPREMACY DEPENDS ON GOOD AIRPLANE FORCE

Air Strength Needed to Maintain Superiority on Earth, Moffett Claims

BY REAR ADM. W. A. MOFFETT
Washington — (P) — Supremacy on the surface in any naval engagement between forces of comparable size cannot be had with inferiority of air strength.

However, to avoid any possible misconception, I want to emphasize that supremacy in the air is of no use to anybody except as it affects conditions on the surface beneath.
There is no general classification of service in the United States navy that is so essentially and comprehensively naval in the border zones of the world, as is naval aviation. It becomes ever more apparent, as we gain experience, that the airplane does not and cannot perform any new basic function in war which has not been performed in some manner or other for years past by other naval agencies. Yet it becomes apparent that there is no type of vessel, and no class of naval service, whose effectiveness in war is not greatly enhanced by the cooperation of aircraft in one form or another.

Gunnery-spotting planes are in effect high observation posts for gun spotters such as are found atop every battleship. But the spotter in the plane can often clearly see what the spotter on ship cannot see at all. Scouting airplanes are merely mobile lookout stations.

Diving airplanes perform exactly the same basic function that guns perform to throw a destructive projectile against the enemy.
The difference lies in the fact that the ship equipped with airplanes for this purpose can strike the enemy at approximately 10 times the range that is possible with ordinary gun fire.

The torpedo plane is essentially a mobile torpedo tube. The conventional torpedo vessel, which uses launching tubes affixed to her decks, can deliver a torpedo attack only by placing herself and her entire ship's company in danger of destruction by defending gun fire.
With the use of planes the vessel may work well out beyond the range of opposing gun fire.

Smoke-laying aircraft are employed for the same reason that smoke-laying destroyers and cruisers are employed. The only important distinction is that when planes are used to lay smoke, the job is done quicker, the target offered the enemy is smaller and fewer men are placed in danger.

Fighting aircraft have the same mission that is assigned to anti-aircraft guns mounted on the decks of the surface ships. Both are designed to destroy enemy aircraft.
Fighting airplanes, however, are a far more effective defense against air attack than anti-aircraft guns.

The airplane in naval operations is at once a gun, a vehicle, a high observation post, a torpedo tube, a depth-charge projector, a mine-layer and a smoke screen layer. The field of naval aircraft operations at sea is as wide as the navy itself, no wider.

AVOID DIZZY SPELLS

Never well. Always tired and fagged out. Beauty tossed away by neglect. To be beautiful and to keep youth the system must be free from poisonous backwash of constipation which often causes dizzy spells. For 20 years, Dr. F. M. Edwards gave his patients, in place of calomel, a compound of vegetable ingredients mixed with olive oil, naming them Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. Known by their olive color. They free the system of poisons that ravage health, energy, beauty.

You need never have sallow complexion, dull eyes, coated tongue, throbbing headaches—all signs that your bowels are clogged, liver is torpid. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets nightly. They act smoothly and without griping. How much better you'll feel and look! Everywhere wise men and women who know the value of good health take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets. All drug stores,

WHAT NEXT! NOW GIRLS ARE EVEN SHOOTING MEGS

It's hopeless. Women have invaded industry, the barber shops, and politics, and now the girls at Mc-Kinley junior high school have taken up marbles, or, in the language of the streets, "megs." "Snooks", "roll 'em in", "set up an agate" and all the rest of the jargon come, lit-tling out over feminine tongues as easily as any other slang, and the more proficient they become in the use of the terms of the game, the more skilled they get in "hunching" and rolling the big agate shooters.

It all started over the game of "chase". That was just aiming one marble at another, and though the boys played it too, they basked in the comfortable and superior assurance that this was only child's play, and that when it came to a man's games of marbles, the girls weren't in it. But now it's a proposition of either boo-hoing the girls out of the idea or of buying up all the megs and shooters in town—or sink into ignominy before the careful-shooting skill of the girl players.

Your Income Tax

No. 13

The period for filing income tax returns made on the basis of the calendar year 1928 ends at midnight, March 15, 1929. When by reason of illness or absence from home additional time is required, an application for an extension should be addressed to the collector of internal revenue for the district in which the taxpayer files his returns, together with a full recital for the causes for the delay. Except in the case of taxpayers who are abroad, no extension may be granted for more than six months. The request must be made before the return is due.

American citizens residing or traveling abroad, including persons in the military or naval service on duty outside the United States are granted, without the necessity for filing a request, an extension up to and including the fifteenth day of the sixth month following the close of the taxable year—June 15 if the return is filed on a calendar year basis.

An extension of time for filing returns does not extend the time for payment of the tax, or any installment thereof, unless so specified in the extension. The Commissioner of Internal Revenue may extend the time of payment of the amount determined as the tax by the taxpayer, or any installment thereof, for a period not to exceed six months from the prescribed date.

KIWANIS DIRECTORS HOLD MONTHLY MEET

Directors of Appleton Kiwanis

Monday evening in the offices of the

"My Skin Nearly Drove Me Mad"

"I had pimples and blackheads so badly, and used to squeeze them so much that my face looked red and raw. On the advice of a nurse friend I got a jar of Rowles Menthol Sulphur and used it faithfully for ten days. In 3 days' time there was a big difference in my skin and today it is as soft and clear as my 10-year-old sister's."

The sulphur in Rowles Menthol Sulphur clears the skin while the Menthol heals the sore, broken tissue. That's the twofold action you want for skin troubles. Try Rowles Menthol Sulphur not only for pimples and blackheads, but for dry, scaly skin, rash, and itching eczema. IT WORKS! All druggists sell it in jars ready to use.
Be sure it's Rowles. adv.

BEAUTY HINTS

IF WE COULD SEE OUR FAMILY
AS OTHERS DO

Parents often fail to see defects in their children when they are quite apparent to other people.

It is natural, of course. Old sights and sounds fail to register on our senses. We fail to hear the street cars pass the house after a month or two when at first they bothered us to death.

A spot on a damask chair distresses us at first—then in a week it passes into the discard of impressions and we notice it no longer. We are not half so likely to make an effort to remove it after it has been there for a month or two, as we were upon first discovering it.

UNSEEN FAULTS
And so it is with habits in our children. We get so accustomed to them that we do not see them at all. Or if we do see them they don't disturb us as they should.

How thankful we are if an outsider dares to mention that Billy blinks his eyes or Dorothy is getting round-shouldered! For habit comes under various heads; it can be habit of behavior, habit of carelessness, or more serious still habit of physical nature.

Parents would be wise if they kept themselves alert to the impression their children were making on other people. It is a splendid way to get real perspective on one's own family.

If an aunt or cousin comes to visit at our house it might be a very excellent opportunity to frankly ask for honest advice.

"Of course we think that Billy and Dorothy are perfect, but tell me honestly, what do you think?"
"Well—to begin with," may be the answer, "we think Billy needs glasses. He blinks constantly. I don't believe you notice it, but to strangers it is very apparent. And if Dorothy doesn't straighten up she will be ill. She needs to be watched carefully. I'd take her to a doctor right away."

MORE HAPPY ADVICE

Or: "Now that you ask, I'd make Billy lift his feet. He drags over your floors until he has them ruined. And make Dorothy stop biting her nails. Her hands are in dreadful condition. You could get something at the drug store to put on them, or make her wear mittens at home when she's studying. You don't realize it but she's at them all the time."

"O wud some power the gift to gie us To see ourselves as others see us?"

gives for children too. The power to see them is there if we ask for it.

FASHION HINTS

BLUE SHOES

Blue and white sports shoes stand a fair chance of running a race with black and white. One pair of golf shoes are white buck with triangular tips and fancy saddles of navy blue calf.

MELON BLOUSE

A tan tweed jacket suit, with cut-away front, has a bright cantaloupe colored flat crepe blouse that puts its collar outside the coat.

Roughish Silks To Be Popular For Street

Very graceful is a shell-pink frock for early spring made in one piece, with French pleating inserts in the skirt and for the collar and cuffs that buckle shut.

BY HENRI BENDEL

NEW YORK—For those first balmy days when one may shed her coat, the one-piece frock will function perfectly this spring.

It is several seasons now since the two-piece frocks usurped the place of the little frocks of feminine cut that were all in one piece. Some of the newest one-piece frocks simulate the two-piece frocks but are really made in one.

IT'S ROUGH ON SILK

Roughish silks are likely to be more popular for these street dresses this year than smooth silks. New novelty wools that are sheer and lightweight are excellent also. In fact, there should be some pobby surface to silks or some basket weave or out-of-the-ordinary visible stripping to worsteds to make them the last word this year.

Printed silks and figured wools have had such a popularity that each one wonders how much longer there will be a real vogue for them.

The truth is that monotone things, with intricate, colorful decoration, are running a race with bright prints. But the prints of last design on dark backgrounds, or modernistic, almost invisible and lovely design are excellent still.

There is much red this season. Touches of it on a black and charcoal suit, for instance. A dash of it on the lining of a beige suit with matching blouse.

Some one-piece frocks have a tiny line of red outlining this or that bit of ornamentation, especially if they are blue or black themselves. There is a premium, in fact, on red touches.

The allied frock holds a place in the smart woman's wardrobe that is all its own. The very young women should all have at least one jaunty red frock or suit. And all women should have a red dress. It may be a soft, dark, dull red. It may be a bright red. There's certain lifting effect on the spirits that no color can have as effectively as red.

FEMININITY TRIUMPHS

Cuffs, collars and belt arrangements are very important on new one-piece frocks. Necklines all tend towards soft femininity. It is seldom that one sees a severely tailored, collarless neck without some mitigating touch.

For early spring wear I suggest a fade green or a red wool crepe trimmed with square buttons and buckle of real tortoise shell. This tender, to use buttons and buckles of value is one more effort to make all jewelry serve a real purpose for the costume it accompanies.

This frock has its blouse portion cut like a man's shirt, with fine hand-stitching all around the seams. The skirt is cut in three shallow horizontal sections, with a couple of big inverted pleats in the rear for fullness.

With this type of frock a felt hat in a shade that exactly matches or one that definitely contrasts is good. One of the fitted turbans with the curtain-drop back is a fine choice.

AN INTRICATE MODEL

Much more intricate model is a quaint flowered wrap-around frock, with ruffles of accordion pleating posed in curving line on the skirt, and with ruffled cuffs flaring from the tight sleeves.

This is a chateaufort and cream print on a black background and is very smart looking. A natural Chinese ballbunt hat has its bandings match the frock's colors. Something new in cuffs and collar, as well as skirt fullness, is shown in a charmingly feminine shell-pink crepe one-piece frock. All edges are bound with beige moire ribbon. The cuffs are belted in original manner and the neck has a French fold of fabric for a collar, with one side pleated many times for a tie. There are beige bands about the tight hip-line and above the waistline, giving the frock a tight center portion and a high waistline. A rose-beige hat with beige brim tops it.

BUTTERSCOTCH PIE
One baked pie shell, 1 1/2 cups brown sugar, 4 tablespoons butter,

Fifteen minutes later, Crystal, dressed in the sea-shell pink chiffon evening dress which Faith had made her, lay back in her wheel chair, her pitifully thin hands tightly clutching the "extra" which Bob had brought home. It was the first newspaper she had consented even to glance at since she had regained consciousness in the hospital after her "kidnaping."

Faith pretended to be busy at the girl's dressing table, but every nerve was tautly awaiting further proof that Crystal had at last been aroused from the deadly apathy into which she had been sunk for so long.

"Front page notoriety," came Crystal's voice at last, as her tired hands fell into her lap, crushing the newspaper. "Four of us have had it—Cherry, Sandy, Tony and—I. For two of us—disgrace. For two—glory. I'm glad for Tony and Sandy."

Faith whirled from the dressing table, swept the sad-faced girl with eyes which sparkled with deliberately whipped-up anger. "So that's why you don't want to get well, won't let yourself get well!" she cried. "You think you are disgraced! Of all the idiots—I'm ashamed of you. Crystal, the whole state held its breath while you were in danger. At every prayer meeting in Stanton that night, prayers were offered for your safety. Afterwards, when the doctors were afraid you would die, thousands telephoned the hospital and this house and the newspapers every day to beg for news."

"I'm sorry," Crystal sobbed. "But you do not understand, I—I—oh!" She raised trembling fingers to press against her lips. She had almost confessed.

"You're right, darling. I don't understand," Faith abandoned her pose of anger, calculated to shock Crystal out of her unnatural state. She dropped to her knees beside the wheelchair, took the thin little hands in hers, was about to plead for the girl's full confidence, when a gay, excited whoop ran through the house.

"There's Tony!" she cried, springing to her feet. But to her amazement Crystal clung to her hands, huddling low in her chair, her face convulsed with fear.

"I—I can't see her, Faith! I can't see any more! I tell you—I won't see anyone! I tell you—I won't see anyone!"

"Then I'll send her away," Faith answered calmly even matter-of-factly. If the girl was crazy there was nothing to do but to humor her.

She was turning toward the door when it was flung open and Tony swept into the room as if on a gust of clean, cold wind.

"Crys, darling!" the blithe voice rang out, rich with loving tenderness, rang and filled the room. "You're sitting up! And dressed up! 'O frabjous day! Callooh!'... Oh, Crys, you angel!—and by the way, you look like one—I'm so glad, glad, glad to see you!"

Spread smooth and cover with meringue made of whites of eggs beaten until stiff and dry with granulated sugar. Bake eight minutes in a moderate oven to puff and color meringue.

LACE NIGHTIES
VIE WITH THE NEW PAJAMAS

NEW YORK—The latest beautiful bit of silk and lace for women wear hardly announces itself. As it poses over a hanger it seems a delicate evening frock, slightly longer than the mode. When it is draped over the human figure it is seen that it is a nightie. The upper portion is almost as tight as the only style lasque. It has a shaped waist line with a roll of lace to mark the hips. It flares at the hem. Crepe de chine and georgette form the basis and needle run lace the trimmings.

Suit Blouse

This blouse has a new and different effect by its surprise closing and bow hipline accenting new feminine loveliness in scalloped collar and cuffs. It will prove economical in lipstick red silk crepe to wear with skirt of black sheer velvet, for it can be worn later all Spring with new ensemble. Flowered chiffon, sheer brocade lame, georgette crepe, crepe satin, and printed and plain wool jersey also smart. This exclusive model can be had in sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

Patterns offered at cost price 15 cents (stamps or coin) as a service to readers who sew. New Fashion Book containing all the Spring styles is 15 cents, but may be obtained for 10 cents if ordered with a pattern.

Household Hints

SHORTENED BELT
When the sewing machine belt slackens, heat a hat pin red hot and run it through the leather to make holes for threading it up tighter.

FELT HATS
Keep a few big chunks of art gum handy and clean spots from felt hats the minute they appear. For white or light hats use art gum all over so a cleaned spot will not seem lighter than the rest of the hat.

MAHOGANY CARE
To prevent blotches on mahogany table or dresser tops that are glass-covered, stain little pieces of flat cork and insert under each corner of the glass.

Fashion Plaques

WHY DEMAND OF TEACHERS MORE THAN PARENTS?

BY ALLENE SUMNER

The Anti-Cigarette Alliance of Ohio has introduced a bill into the state legislature which would prohibit smoking by all public school teachers. It is not plain whether the bill designates this complete abstinence during school hours, or at any time. The representative introducing the bill isn't especially rabid on the subject. He mildly remarks that he "doesn't believe that teachers who use cigarettes set a good example to children." He denies, too, that the bill is especially aimed at women teachers; all in all, his rather anaemic manner merely leads one to infer that he wants to do the lady anti-cigarette-leaguer who suggested the bill a good turn, and really hasn't his heart in his work at all.

But whatever the whyfore, how about it? Granted that cigarettes do no one any real good, even if no actual harm, and it may be dangerous to grant either half of that, to what extent does a state have any right to demand of its teachers personal sacrifices which it would not demand by law from parents?

After all, a parent should be more concerned about the horrible examples which it sets its own children than any hired leader of youth. We are inclined, as a nation, to assume the attitude that because we pay taxes, we are automatically relieved from all obligations, even to our own children, assuming that some "paid party" do "the dirty work."

I can only remark that I heartily favor a law forbidding any school teacher to smoke, as soon as there is a similar law forbidding any parent to smoke.

THE TINYMITES

By Elai Cochran

READ THE STORY, THEN COLOR THE PICTURE

WHEN morning came the Tinies stood and thought out plans as best they could, to get poor Clowney from the cave that he was locked up in. Said Scouty, "Gee it seems to me there's some way we can get him free. Whenever you keep at a task, you're usually bound to win."

"Perhaps you're right," another said, "and I've been trying to use my head, but I can't think of any way except to move this stone. We've tried that plan most all night long. I guess we Tinies are not strong. At least we cannot open up the cave way all alone."

They all agreed that he was right. The great big rock still stood right tight against the little cave door. Therefore Clowney still was lost. "And now," said Carpy, "if we can, we'll have to use some other plan. I'm going to help find Clowney, but I don't matter what the cost."

"Let's climb the hill and look around and see if, in the nearby ground, there's any other entrance to the cave inside the earth. We'll search, and search, if you don't mind. No one can tell just what we'll find. We're friends of Clowney's. He should know what real friendship is worth."

Up over the hill they promptly ran, and then the bunch began to scan the rolling land and everything. Then Scouty loudly cried, "Oh, look! That place gives me a thrill. A shaft's built right up on the hill. Perhaps that leads down to the cave, and we can drop inside."

They ran up to the shaft and then, woe Carpy said, "Good luck, again! It does lead far down in the earth. Some place it's bound to stop. If we're not halted by a scare, we may find Clowney way down there. Now, who's the first one brave enough to try and take the drop?"

(We return to Clowney in the next story.)

SPEEDY NEW YORK HAS SPEEDY DRINK

New York City, N. Y.—Hurrying crowds on the streets and boulevard, rushing subway trains, express elevators, "grab-a-bite-and-run" shops, all create an atmosphere of speed in the big city that demands an equal rush from each inhabitant. Everything that enables one to keep up the jazz tempo—rapid transit, quickly prepared meals, and instantly prepared drinks—is popular. Miss Helen Hunt, 2843 Eighth Avenue, confronted with the problem of getting out in the morning quickly to combat the crowds on her way to business, has discovered a hot drink that is prepared in an instant and yet contributes to her diet requirements. She tells about it below:

"For some reason or another, perhaps because I am a New Yorker, when preparing a hot drink I am always in a hurry and, for this particular reason, use nothing but Instant Postum which is the only hot mealtime drink that I know of that is really made in an instant. And it is a delightful drink!

Lists Advantages

"The advantages of drinking Postum are many. Postum will not cause nervousness, headaches, etc. Another advantage in using this drink is that, no matter how often you indulge, it will not give you that muddy, yellow complexion that is the result of an overindulgence in caffeine beverages.

"My advice to those who have never tried Instant Postum is to, at least, give it a fair trial."

Made in an Instant!

No drink of the same character is so quickly, so easily made as Instant Postum. It actually takes less time to prepare than it takes to tell you how! Just a teaspoonful of Instant Postum in the cup, fill with boiling water, add cream and sugar to taste—your drink is ready! You can make it right at the table!

And it's as easy to take as it is easy to make! Millions prefer Postum's rich, full-bodied flavor to that of any other mealtime drink.

And your enjoyment of Postum doesn't end at the table. There are no regrets in this drink! For Postum is made of roasted whole wheat and bran—no trace of any artificial stimulant in it. Nothing to keep you awake, to harass nerves and heart, to cause headaches and indigestion, as caffeine beverages so often do.

Try Postum, in place of caffeine beverages! Try it for thirty days—then decide whether you ever want to go back to caffeine. You'll become a Postum enthusiast for life!

Order Instant Postum from your grocer. Or if you prefer the kind you boil, ask for Postum Cereal. Both are the same drink. Both cost less than other mealtime drinks—only one-half cent a cup.

INSTEAD of exercise

Millions of busy men and women are keeping themselves in perfect condition nowadays because they've learned the secret of the exerciser in the vest-pocket box for a dime.

Cascarets give your bowels as much exercise as you get from an hour's hard play. They give you lasting relief from headaches, biliousness, constipation, indigestion, etc. Each time you use them, your bowels become stronger. Oils, salts and ordinary laxatives produce only mechanical or chemical action, which actually weakens the bowels.

Cascarets are made from Cascara Sagrada, which stimulates the peristaltic action and exercises the bowel muscles. Nothing else does this. That's why Cascarets are selling at the rate of 20 million boxes a year!

EXPECTS RETURN OF CRIMINALS IF DRY LAW IS ENFORCED

Complete Abolishment of Liquor Traffic to Put Thousands Out of Jobs

BY LEMUEL F. PARTON
Copyright 1929 by the Consolidated Press Association

New York—In the metropolis and at Washington, the enforcement mills start grinding. President Hoover starts his war on crime and police Commissioner Whalen asks for more rigorous police authority. The Jones bill is working. Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt is boomed as dry chief. Chicago is bivoqueing for a fight against crime and booze. The Washington package trade is down to a thin trickle. Broadway, the rollicking, roistering part of it, is scared. The idea of March brings chill and ominous days.

This correspondent journeyed to Flatbush Tuesday, piecing out a bit of the hidden, human pattern, always to be found in such great, impersonal designs as making a nation dry and enforcing laws against crime. Here, in a red brick, two-family house dwells a family socially reclaimed by bootlegging. If its story has social meaning, it touches on the question of the return of thousands of criminals to their own pursuits when the Eighteenth Amendment is finally enforced.

Anton, whose real name obviously cannot be given, first came to this writer's attention, many years ago, as an amateur racketeer, just graduating from an apprenticeship of milk bottle and door-mat stealing. He had a police court record of petty crimes which, under Commissioner Whalen's amplified criminal code, would now place him in jeopardy. His wife and three small children lived in a wretched hovel on the Brooklyn waterfront.

COULDN'T HOLD JOB

Anton had certain engaging qualities which aroused the interest of police court visitors. They found him work first as a cigar stripper, then as a truck driver and then as a shipyard worker. He could never hold a job. The children's old society, reporting on the family, described Anton as "of low economic quality, virtually unemployable and with criminal tendencies."

Two years ago this writer chanced to hear that Anton had a nice job in Gus So and So speak-easy in lower Manhattan; that he was taking care of his family and that the children were in school. This was verified. From the position of swamper Anton had worked up to the ease and distinction of the position of head keeper. The pleasantly illicit social environment of rum selling had provided the one possible outlet for Anton's gift of easy command. Grown stouter and immaculately dressed, he had the benign, senatorial look of one who had arrived.

Hence the trip to Flatbush, to check on the domestic phase of this amazing rehabilitation. Mrs. Anton, placid and assured, recalled the visitor's interest in Anton in the old days. Yes, Anton has a nice job in a store in New York and never touches a drop. All the children in school at the Christmas holidays. Minnie was given a special award for scholarship; Tom is in high school and is going to be an engineer; the two-family house was bought; with a small down payment and the rent from the family upstairs almost pays for it; in seven years more they will own their home.

It is a home of pride and achievement.

Further information about the speak-easy personnel was sought from a former police inspector, who since his retirement from the force, has been connected with a New York social agency and who has a close range study of many such life stories as Anton's.

ABSORBS MANY CRIMINALS

"It is true," he said, "that bootlegging, bar-tending and general roguishness work around speak-easies have absorbed a large number of men who were either criminals or on the borderland of crime, as well as men just below the level of economic requirements in intelligence. I can think of a half dozen petty sneak thieves, perhaps not congenital criminals, but too stupid to hold a job, who get along, year after year without stealing, through their employment in speak-easies."

"Obviously, real enforcement will send a lot of these men back to their old trades and that is something the country ought to consider and prepare for."

"Personally, I am for enforcement as I think the present system, while diverting certain criminals and keeping them out of their old occupations, stimulates crime and corruption in numerous other ways. Of course it would be preposterous to maintain an illegal system as a sort of blotter for crime."

"We have some loosely compiled statistics showing that there are somewhere around 95,000 men making their living out of booze in New York today. Similar preparations in other large cities would stack up quite a disturbing total. When you consider that a great proportion of these men were either actual or potential criminals—that by a selective process they went into this occupation because they had no concern for social condemnation—it will be seen that enforcement must inevitably be a big addition to the anti-social and economically unfit population. This is a factor which cannot be ignored in Mr. Hoover's vigorous attack on crime, with prohibition enforcement as one of its most important objectives."

LAWMAKERS ASKED TO VOTE $150,000 TO ADVERTISE STATE

Assemblyman Thinks Wisconsin's Advantages Should Be Told to World

Madison—(AP)—The Lacey bill for a state advertising fund to be used to set before the people of the country Wisconsin's beauty, farm products and industrial capacity has been introduced in full by its author, having been in by title only.

The bill would appropriate $150,000 to the conservation commission, department of agriculture and industrial commission for the year beginning July 1, 1929 to be used in promoting Wisconsin interests as applied to tourists and immigrants.

Charles L. Lacey, Mercer, the author, has said the bill has the approval of Governor Kohler.

Among other bills previously presented by title and now fully prepared is the Eber bill providing that land lords buying current from a light and power company cannot charge the occupants of their apartments more than the railroad commission rate for retail sales of this kind by the utility.

The same author, John W. Eber, Milwaukee, presented in full a measure whereby the commissioner of banking, the state superintendent of building and loan associations and five persons appointed by the governor would constitute a committee to revise and modify building and loan association laws of the state.

The committee would receive $10 a day for their services, while actually performing the committee work.

Assemblyman Beggs, Rice Lake, presented a bill for a state compensation plan. Under it, the civil service commission would certify to the joint finance committee at the opening of each legislative session the rates and schedules of payment of all state employees. The committee would then recommend to the legislature salary ranges for the employees.

A bill by the same author, E. E. Husband, of Balsam Lake, setting up a state law on appointment, qualification, duties and bonding of deputy coroners, was also approved by the lower house, along with the Reis bill giving world war veterans preference on the admission list of Wisconsin general hospital here.

The Slagg bill under which there may be a presumption against a witness in a criminal case when such individual refuses to testify also was approved and sent to the senate.

New War Secretary's Wife Is Conservative

BY SUE McNAMARA
Washington—(AP)—Moderate in all her tastes is Mrs. James W. Good, wife of the new secretary of war. Conservative and well balanced, Mrs. Good should fit easily into her new duties as a cabinet member's wife.

Clad in a becoming maroon gown, she snatched a few moments from a busy morning recently to tell something of her family and home life. Of herself Mrs. Good would say little. She smilingly denies having any hobbies. She served as secretary of the Woman's club of Evanston, Ill., but says that she cannot in any sense be called a club woman. She thinks careers are fine for women if they want them, but has never coveted one. She is fond of her home, but does not like to cook.

One suspects from the twinkle in her eye that newspaper pictures of prominent women in kitchen attire have something to do with her announced distaste for this domestic art.

Mrs. Good comes from the middle west, where homes are still of paramount importance and where the women, if they do not do the actual cooking at least have a vast knowledge of how to cook. President Hoover says the section of Iowa where Mrs. Good is from has produced more good cooks than Paris.

In the thriving city of Cedar Rapids, with its comfortable homes and tree lined streets, Mrs. Good was born and lived for years. Her father, C. J. Deacon, who practices law, although 82 years old, still lives there. The Good family moved to Chicago seven years ago, but Mrs. Good has been making visits to her old home about every three months since.

Her eldest son, James William Good, Jr., 18, is a freshman at Northwestern university. His brother, Robert, 11, will live in Washington with his parents. James left school only long enough to come to Washington for the inauguration.

Good was in congress. With their removal to Chicago it was sold. Still intent on quiet family life, they purchased a home in Evanston, a block from the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Dawes. The two families have been great friends.

Getting located comfortably in Washington in a home in a quiet section of the city is now the chief aim of this Iowa woman of moderate tastes.

French See Socialist Forces Gaining Power

BY S. F. WADER
Paris—(AP)—An experiment in socialist government for the first time under the Third Republic is being widely predicted for France during 1929. The situation arises from the indecisive elections of last spring and the fact that the revamped Poincare cabinet shows unexpected weakness.

The nearness of negotiations on the fundamental issues of reparations and Rhineland occupation is a fairly safe guarantee that Premier Poincare will remain until some settlement is effected.

The cabinet itself is divided on several questions, such as the return of the Jesuits to France and the organization of the chamber of deputies.

The opposition, composed of socialists, radicals and republican socialists, has no clear majority on any issue, but with the aid of disgruntled and disappointed deputies of other groups is able constantly to menace the government.

The difficulty with which the budget was put through and the significant vote on the increase in the salaries of members of parliament opened the eyes of leaders of the moderate groups supporting Poincare to the shaky condition of the government. Some of them openly advocate a change of administration.

with the socialists in control, so as to furnish the country with a demonstration of the real meaning of socialist government.

Anticipating a socialist financial program involving a capital levy, these leaders believe the experiment with an extremist government would be short and sufficiently instructive to bring about a new grouping of parties that would furnish a stable majority.

The socialists are conceded the upper hand in a new government formed by the present opposition because the radical party is shattered and unable to command the situation.

My Thirty Years at Sea

by CAPTAIN GEORGE FRIED

It was love at first sight when I met the girl who became my wife at a dinner aboard the America. They were opposites in every way. She was a sailor's daughter, the long period of homesickness and lovesickness before marriage; house hunting and furniture buying, and he says he proceeded slowly as he did not want to "run into any squalls."

CAPT. GEORGE FRIED
(Copyright, 1929, Associated Press)
Chapter XV

Until I was married I never had the chance to enjoy home life. Every sailor hopes to have a home some day, away from the sea, and fortune indeed is the sailor who can go to his home of his own if only for a short time in port. Men in the merchant marine are better off in this respect than the men of the navy, who move constantly from port to port.

After 10 or 15 years at sea the desire to roam is on the wane; at least that is how I found it. Why I wanted to travel and seek adventure I do not know, for I certainly did not inherit the trait. My parents, both of whom were born in Sweden, came to this country shortly after the Civil War and settled in Illinois. A year or two later, I understand, they went to Worcester to establish what turned out to be their permanent home. My father was employed in a steel wire mill and had never been to sea except the time when he made the voyage to this country with my mother.

I was abroad the Hartford, voyaging to Europe in 1905, when my father died. It was not until after I reached the port of destination that I received word of his death by letter. Mother also died while I was away from home, in 1909. So no home was my ship from that time until I met my wife—a case of love at first sight. Oh, yes, I know the question you have in mind. I was a sailor, remember, and even the young lady whom I determined to make my wife did not take me seriously at first. She laughingly told me she was willing to be my New York girl.

I was in May, 1910, when I met Miss Laura Parmenter at a dinner aboard the American. I was navigator with the rank of lieutenant, Miss Parmenter was young, vivacious, pretty with black flashing eyes and a beautiful smile. The say opposites attract. I watched her intently during the dinner and arranged later for a party the following night, together with another of the ship's officers and a young lady. She was living in New York with an aunt and uncle, but was a native of Cincinnati. I met her aunt and uncle and lost no time in informing them that Miss Parmenter was the young lady that I wanted for my sailor's courtship obviously is not satisfactory. Almost a month tried Park. We wondered if we were not tackling too big a job because of what appeared to us to be a very high rent. I knew nothing about rents nor locations. We took a two-room apartment with a kitchenette in West Eighty-fourth Street, New York.

It was a great day for me when we selected our furniture. This was another new adventure. There were so many things I wanted that I was prepared to buy twice as much as was actually necessary. Before I sailed again a Victrola was sent to us as a gift on which I almost wore out one of the records, "Love Nest," before I put to sea again, alone.

I regret that the law of the sea does not permit a member of a ship's complement to have his wife go along, but it is probably best after all because a ship cannot have two captains. So my starboard anchor remains at home. Nevertheless, I do not hesitate to recommend marriage to a seafaring man if he gets the right girl.

Several months afterward I was laid up with an attack of pneumonia and it was then that I appreciated to the fullest extent my wife and my home, for the tender care and comfort I enjoyed. And I want to say that Mrs. Fried is an excellent cook. In fact we moved from the kitchenette apartment to another with a full-sized kitchen so she could enjoy the facilities of a real galley. I have not to find the steward who can serve me an apple pie that can compare, even favorably, with my wife's baking. Our home, after seven years, is still a love nest. It is about time that I replaced that record, "Love Nest," for it is so scratchy that only Mrs. Fried and I can recognize the tune which we both love.

Soil For Spring Garden Must Be Well Prepared

EDITOR'S NOTE: This is the third of a series of articles on "Planting and Planting for Spring," which have been prepared for The Post-Crescent and by Romaine B. Ware, nationally-known garden authority.

BY ROMAINE B. WARE
For NEA Service

Even the most inexperienced gardener can succeed with flowers from seed planted right out in the open where they are to bloom. There is no particular trick to it.

There are, however, several things to be kept in mind. First, you should buy the best seeds you can afford. Cheap seeds may give you good flowers, but in buying cheap seeds you are taking a chance when for a few cents more you could buy from some of the more reliable and larger seed houses. It really pays to get catalogues from several of the larger seed houses and compare their offerings. You will find among them many things worth trying.

ADVICE IN PLANTING

It is important that the soil where seeds are to be planted is well prepared. It must be fine and free from lumps. Remember that the seeds mostly are fine, and if the soil is not well prepared the seeds cannot germinate properly. With well-prepared soil seeds should come up promptly. When planting, cover them lightly, water gently and cover with tissue paper till they are through the ground. Do not plant the seeds too thickly or they will not have sufficient room to develop and it will be difficult to transplant them.

There are some things like the poppies that will not stand trans-

FISHERMEN OPPOSE COMMISSION'S BILL

Commercial fishermen from every port on Lake Michigan and Green Bay are planning to go to Madison to appear in favor of a bill sponsored by the Wisconsin Federation of Commercial Fishermen and to oppose a bill sponsored by the Wisconsin Conservation commission, according to Samuel Sigman, general director and counsel of the federation.

"The proposals of the conservation commission, the fishermen believe, will work a confiscation of their property," Mr. Sigman said. "The fishermen were especially opposed to the attempt of the commission to change the mesh nets for chubs. The commission advocates 2½ inch mesh and the fishermen want a 2½ inch mesh minimum. The fishermen also oppose the proposed 10 per cent limit on number of trout caught in chub nets."

In addition to being well represented at the hearings the fishermen will be present a number of petitions in favor of their bill, Mr. Sigman said.

PUBLIC HEARING ON AUCTION ORDINANCE IS SET FOR MONDAY

Measure Urged by Businessmen Is Referred to Committee by Council

A public hearing on the proposed ordinance regulating auctions in Appleton, introduced at the last meeting of the common council by the revised ordinance committee, will be held at 7:30 Monday evening in the council chambers at the city hall. The hearing will be conducted by the council's ordinance committee.

The ordinance, prepared at the insistence of local business men, was referred by the council to the ordinance committee and ordered published. Following the hearing, the committee will draw up its recommendation for presentation at the next council meeting.

Eighteen sections are included in the ordinance, covering thoroughly every complaint voiced by merchants every time an auction was conducted in Appleton.

It provides that a permit, to be issued by the mayor, shall be required before an auction can be held. Before application is made, the applicant must take an inventory of the stock or merchandise to be sold, and submit the figures to the mayor. The city sealer of weights and measures shall then make an inspection to check the figures of the applicant. The inventory must be filed with the mayor 60 days prior to the time the permit is granted.

The permit shall be issued for a definite period of time, and the date and hour of expiration shall be stated in the permit. The ordinance provides: The licensee shall be $25, in addition to 10 per cent of the gross receipts accruing from the sale, except when the sale is made by virtue of a chattel mortgage or of a rule, order of judgment of a court or of some law of the state or of the United States.

ACCOUNT SALE DAILY
The accounting of the sale must be made daily, and the payment of the 10 per cent fee shall be made daily by 10 o'clock of the morning following the sale. Both the owner and auctioneer are jointly and separately liable.

Exceptions, of course, are allowed. The ordinance states that "no permit, as herein provided shall be required for the sale of any wagon, carriage, automobile, truck, mechanical tools, used farm implements, live stock, including game and poultry, dressed or undressed, vegetables, fruits, melons, berries, flowers, or the sale of used household furniture and effects, nor for the sale of real estate located within said city."

Other provisions vest the mayor with the power to suspend the sale at any time, require that the merchandise must be truthfully described, and forbid "booster" bids. Auction sales must be held on successive days, except Sundays and holidays, and shall not last longer than 30 days a year. No auction shall be held between 6 o'clock in the evening and 8 o'clock the following morning. The mayor may appoint an inspector for the sale, and no stock may be added during the sale. The penalty for violation of any of the provisions shall be a fine of not more than $100 and costs, besides the proper per cent of the sales.

How to Darken Gray Hair

By BERYL WEST

I repeat what I have often said—there's no excuse today for a woman submitting to gray hair and looking older than she feels. Gray, faded or streaked hair may be so perfectly restored to color that it need be only your own boudoir secret. Nothing more or less than a mixture of sage tea and sulphur is the magic.

One may either prepare the mixture at home, or as most people prefer to do, buy it already prepared and ready to use. Wyeth's Sage & Sulphur is the name of the ready-to-use preparation and since all druggists sell it at 75c a bottle, there is really no need of going to the trouble of making it yourself.

You simply moisten a comb or soft brush with it, and draw it through the hair, one stroke at the time. One application banishes the gray and one or two more completely restores your gray, faded or streaked hair to its original color. There is no artificial, dyed look. The whole effect is one of perfect naturalness. My readers would be surprised if they knew of the thousands of men and women who use this preparation.

NAME A. C. DENNEY PLAYGROUND HEAD

Plan to Establish One New Center in Lower Fourth Ward

A. C. Denney, director of Appleton playgrounds last year and director of athletics at Lawrence college, has been named director of the grounds for the coming summer, according to announcement made Tuesday.

Playgrounds will be run on practically the same basis as last summer, according to officers of the Civic Council who are handling the project. The city council again has set aside $3,000 to finance the project, the amount being the same as used in 1928.

One new playground will be opened this summer, and activities in many wards may be transferred to parks in the districts. The new playground will be in the lower Fourth ward in the Interlake park. Plans also are to use Pierce park at least part-time for Third ward children and Erb park for Sixth warders. The first ward park has been used for certain groups of children for the last year.

Persons wishing jobs as supervisors of the playground this summer have been asked to apply directly to Mr. Denney. There will be a two supervisors at each grounds one for boys and another for girls. Applications for positions should be in writing and be made to Mr. Denney at his office at Lawrence college gymnasium.

Compliance With This Suggestion Better Than Puddle Jumping, Nurse Says

Puddle jumping is a skilled sport, but in the eyes of the school nurses there is a more scientific way of keeping children's feet dry.

"The time for rubbers has come," says Miss Mary Orblson, school nurse, "and children should be cautioned to wear them from now until the sidewalks are dry. With the streets and walks taking on the appearance of a spring flood, children can't be expected to keep their feet dry unless they are properly outfitted. Spring colds are uncomfortable and sometimes dangerous, and as

FACTS ABOUT WISCONSIN

Tractors on Wisconsin farms numbered 36,227 on May 1st, 1927, or about one to every five farms. This represents an increase of 9 per cent over 1925, and the number has increased steadily since 1927 when the last count was taken. Horses on Wisconsin farms have steadily given way before motor vehicles and tractors. While the substitution of mechanical power for horses is in keeping with the trend of the times, the fact that farm motorization has released farm land formerly producing horse feed must be seriously considered. These released acres, now producing food crops instead of horse feed, tend to contribute toward over-production and to further complicate the farmer's marketing problems. While the tractor has come to stay, it does not follow that the farm horse is doomed. During the war, Wisconsin farmers stopped breeding horses. Now they are buying horses. For every horse raised in the state for replacement purposes, three or four ranch raised horses are now shipped in from western ranges to meet replacement needs. Iowa and Illinois stock that once came here is now needed for replacements at home. This matter of replacement horses for Wisconsin farms deserves attention. In spite of the net importation of some 50,000 head between 1926 and 1928, the number of horses in the state declined 19,000 head. With home raised and home owned stock growing steadily older, the present mortality rate of 5 per cent will climb to 10 per cent or more each year. According to J. P. Riordan, director of the agricultural bureau of the Wisconsin Manufacturers' Association, "As colts in a Wisconsin field four years ago was as common a sight as a buffalo," though replacement horses will always be needed. If Badger farmers aimed toward meeting their replacement needs with home raised horses, the cost of raising colts would represent a saving in cash outlay for ranch bred stock.

THE BLACK PIGEON

THIS HAS HAPPENED
The body of "HANDSOME HARRY" BORDEN, promoter and ladies' man, murdered Saturday afternoon, is found beneath the closed airshaft window of his private office Monday by his secretary, RUTH LESTER.

DETECTIVE McMANN learns of five people who had opportunity and possible motive for the murder: MRS. ELIZABETH BORDEN, estranged wife; Ruth Lester, who admits ownership of a pistol, near her desk; BENNY SMITH, office boy; JACK HAYWARD, insurance broker, with offices directly across the airshaft, and RITA DUBOIS Borden's sweetheart. Suspicion falls most heavily on Hayward, Ruth's fiancé, because of overheard threats against Borden, his presence in the building Saturday, the location of his office and the disappearance of his own pistol from his desk.

Bloody footprints of a pigeon inside and outside the airshaft window indicate the window was open until after Borden's death. Benny Smith, who has not reported for work, is sent for, as is MINNIE CASSIDY and LETTY MILLER, scrubwomen.

BILL COWAN strengthens suspicion against Hayward by telling of a telephone call to Hayward's offices Saturday at 2:10 when he was put on busy wire and heard Borden's voice in anger, presumably against Hayward.

Ruth tells McMANN about CLED GILMAN, recently discarded mistress of Borden. She is sought. Rita Dubois arrives, admits she had planned a weekend trip with Borden, but had telephoned him from the station when he had failed to meet her. Rita says she went to the office but his door was locked.

Ruth tells McMANN of Borden's having given the dancer the torn half of a yellow-backed bill. Borden's half is missing from the body, as well as $500 more in smaller bills. Rita admits, under grilling that she saw Borden, that he gave her the other half of a $500 bill, but insists that he was alive when she left him at 2:30 promising to meet him later. Borden's manservant, FRANK ASHE, is sent for by police for questioning.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XXV

"All right, Birdwell," McMANN nodded to his subordinate. "I told Mrs. Borden to come back to the office. How's her sick child?"

"Better? That's good!"

Ruth Lester thought, the stern detective seemed to be genuinely pleased. "We won't keep her from the kid longer than necessary. Sick, all right. I talked to the doctor myself. Tell Ferber to come in. Hold Ashe out there till I'm ready for him. And send around for Mr. Hayward. He's in his own office."

Ruth's eyes dilated with fear. Was McMANN going to arrest Jack now, confined, as she was sure the detective was, that Hayward had shot Harry Borden through the open windows, facing each other across the airshaft and that Rita, arriving very soon afterwards, had robbed his body? If so, how was McMANN accounting to himself for the disappearance of her pistol? Or did he still stubbornly hold to his belief that she, Ruth, fearing trouble between the two men—Hayward and Borden—had taken the too-handily weapon away with her on Saturday?

Ferber, the fingerprint expert, was entering the private office. A large portfolio under his arm, when McMANN shot another question at Rita Dubois:

"Was that window open or closed when you were in this office Saturday afternoon?" And he pointed to the window looking out upon the airshaft.

Rita's terror-stricken black eyes went blank. "Window? ... I don't know. ... Yes, I do! It was open, because I noticed some pigeons—or at least one black pigeon—walking up and down the window ledge."

"Hello, Ferber! Let's see what you've got there. Good, clear prints?"

"Lots of 'em, McMANN," the fingerprint expert answered cheerfully, smiling and nodding at Ruth Lester. He spread the sheet of enlarged photographed fingerprints upon Borden's desk. "Here's one peculiar set—found it half a dozen places," and he pointed to a picture. "Look! The middle finger of the right hand is a stub—about half an inch of it missing. Tad say?"

Ruth started eagerly toward the desk. "These are Minnie Cassidy's fingerprints. Half of the first joint of her middle right finger was cut off in an accident when she was a child. She told me about it when she was dusting my desk one afternoon."

"Thanks, Miss Lester," McMANN granted, as he bent over the photographs, studying them frowningly. He looked up as Jack Hayward entered the room, jerked a nod at him, which Jack answered with smiling courtesy before he crossed the room to take his place beside Ruth Lester.

"Send Mrs. Borden in, Birdwell," McMANN called through the door which Jack left ajar.

When Mrs. Borden was shown into the private office by Birdwell, McMANN stuck his hands deep into his pockets and regarded his collection of "guests" with upraised brows an almost familiar twisted smile.

He looked at each in turn—Elizabeth Borden, the murdered man's widow, whom he had tried, earlier in the day, to bully into a confession; Rita Dubois, dancer at the Golden Sinner club and the murdered man's last lover; Ruth Lester, his secretary, who, to protect herself from her employer's amorous nature, had disguised her beauty with ill-fitting clothes, sheek-back hair, and yellow spectacles, only to reveal it dramatically on the day of Borden's murder; John C. Hayward, Ruth's fiancé, the man upon whom Ferber said to McMANN, pointing to a picture. "Found a number of them on the kid's desk."

"Anyone else touch your desk Saturday that you know of?" McMANN asked Ruth.

"No, I did, of course. I opened the bottom drawer, as I have told you to get a paper cup to give Mrs. Borden a drink. She started to help me, but didn't touch the drawer—and she had on gloves. I remember," Ruth answered.

"One of Borden's thumbprints half obliterated by Rita's thumbprint," McMANN mused, in a low voice, that was just loud enough for Ruth's straining ears to catch. "That means he opened the drawer first—"

"Well, if he did, he did it before I came," Rita cut in. "He certainly didn't touch that desk while I was with him."

Ruth's head spun with conjectures. If Borden had opened that bottom drawer on Saturday afternoon, after her departure, and before Rita's arrival, was it not possible that he had done so to get the gun to protect himself against some threatened trouble—trouble arising from that mysterious telephone call which had kept him so long that he had missed his train?

But Bill Cowan had testified that Borden had been connected with Jack Hayward's number! Had McMANN, whose ability she was beginning to respect as much as she feared it, arrived at the same conclusion? If so, he had again arrived at Jack Hayward as the most likely suspect. ... Ruth forced her mind away from that too terrible possibility. Supposing Borden, fearful of an attack at the hands of someone who had not yet come into the investigation—for she herself was convinced that Jack had not talked to Borden over the phone or across the airshaft—had taken the gun from her desk.

When Rita came—Ruth went on building up her supposititious case—the gun was on top of Borden's desk, handy for his defense against the person from whom he undoubtedly feared a visit. Else why should he have planned to remain all afternoon in his office, instead of spending the hours between trains with Rita? But that, she told herself despairingly, was built on the theory that Rita was telling the truth about the agreement between her and Borden to make the later train.

Why suppose Rita had told the truth? She had lied so much! No, it was better to hold tight to facts. Borden had undoubtedly opened the bottom drawer of the desk. In all probability he had done so to get the gun kept there. Rita had come. She had quarreled with Borden. She had seen the gun on his desk. She had shot him to get the money he would not give her. Then Rita had robbed the body.

Perhaps she was telling the truth about the paste—or part truth. Who could say how Rita's mind would function after she had killed Borden? The bill was all important. It was torn in two. In an office there would be paste. She had hunted for the paste in the outer office, and in the meantime the black pigeon—or one of his flock—had flown in through the open window, had dipped his tiny foot in the fresh-flowing blood of the dead man, leaving tell-tale tracks behind.

But why had Rita come back into the death room to close the window? Ruth knit her brows in a terrific effort to think straight. Then light burst upon her. Rita had heard the flutter of the pigeon's wings or the sound of its body crouching against the glass of the upper sash and had backed into the private office, frightened half to death. She had seen the pigeon—or maybe several of them—on the window ledge, and had had a sudden horror of the feathered creatures pecking at Harry Borden's dead face.

Cautious instinctively, even in her panic, she had closed the window with her gloved left hand, so that there were no fingerprints. Ruth started to draw a deep breath of relief, when suddenly the whole structure toppled and fell, stricken by one question which her relentlessly logical mind insisted upon asking: If Rita had done all this, where did Jack's missing automatic fit into the picture?

Then here it came up, its head again. Why try to fit Jack's gun into any theory of the murder? It was missing—true. But wasn't it entirely possible that Jack's gun had been stolen by a petty thief, prowling through the almost deserted office building, glad to lay his hands on anything of value? The long arm of coincidence, of course, but wasn't real life full of just such amazing coincidences?

But Ruth knew, even as she consoled herself with this philosophic reflection, that Detective Sergeant McMANN would emit a loud roar of derisive laughter if she told him her theory. He might be trying, with true police conscientiousness, to bully Rita Dubois into confessing to both murder and robbery, but Ruth was sure that in his heart McMANN believed that the dancer had done nothing worse than rob a dead man's body, after Harry Borden had been killed by Jack Hayward, in a jealous rage.

The newly-discovered evidence that Borden had had Ruth's gun in his possession that Saturday afternoon would do much, Ruth realized sickly, to confirm McMANN's suspicions against Jack. He would argue, undoubtedly, that Borden and Jack had quarreled over the telephone—that inexplicable one-sided conversation of Borden's which Bill Cowan had overheard when he had called Jack Hayward's number at 10 minutes after two—and that consequently, fearing an attack upon his life, Borden had possessed himself of Ruth's gun, had gone to the open window with it in his hand, and had been shot down by Hayward before he could aim Ruth's weapon.

But—Ruth argued with herself desperately—If McMANN believed this to be the truth about Borden's murder, how could he account for the disappearance of her gun? Would he be so stupid as to try to convince himself that Rita Dubois had stolen it, too, along with the money on Borden's body?

Ruth herself was sure that if Rita had come into Borden's office and found him dead, with a gun lying on the floor, she would have concluded that he had committed suicide, would not have dreamed of touching the weapon with which he had done it, for fear of its being found in her possession and incriminating her.

"Miss Lester!" McMANN's harsh voice broke into the girl's troubled maze of theory and conjecture. "Do you know when the glass panels of these office doors were washed last?"

Ruth considered for a moment, then answered confidently: "On Friday. The window washer always comes on Friday, and does the door panels at the same time. It was late Friday afternoon."

"Was any other woman, besides yourself, Rita and Mrs. Borden in these offices after the window washer's visit?"

Ruth shook her head, her puzzled blue eyes taking in the fact that McMANN's narrowed eyes were fixed upon a set of photographed fingerprints. "No. Not while I was here, Mr. McMANN."

"Well," McMANN growled, "some woman was here, all right. She left her calling card on the glass panel of the door between this office and the outer one. Three fingerprints." He reached for the phone, which was plugged up with police headquarters. "Hello! Captain Foster, please! McMANN speaking. ... Oh, Captain, any report yet on Cleo Gilman? ... Is that so?"

John McGraw Confident About New York Giants

BY JOHN B. FOSTER
Copyright 1929 by the Post Pub. Co.
AN ANTONIO, TEXAS.—John McGraw is found these days out in a blue sweater and a pair of baseball kicks, at home plate sitting grounders to his fielders. His fifty-six years don't keep him off the practice field, because he thinks he has a winning team.

The Giants' manager is taking mighty good care of this team. He sees promise and is busy bringing it out by a thorough schooling. It may be of interest to note that he devotes his attention to hunting for talent. That signifies that he believes that has speed. And when McGraw sees speed his eyes shine just a little brighter than usual.

The practice of the New York Nationals at San Antonio runs like thread off a needle and with as little noise. It is the most quiet of the practice fields in this way, but the also signifies a real earnestness on the part of players and manager.

McGraw is trying to develop a swift, tricky, run-getting team. He wants a team that strikes swiftly and with clean cut precision. His team is as likely to raise sparks in the last inning as in the first.

The Giants are as fit as the Cubs.

Training Camp Gossip

SARASOTA, Fla.—(P)—The Cincinnati Reds had at least one thing to be thankful for Wednesday and that was that they do not have to play Connie Mack's Athletics during the regular schedule. The Mackmen shut out the Reds Tuesday in an abbreviated contest 3 to 0.

Brandon, Fla.—(P)—Manager Bill Carrigan of the Red Sox has taken a leaf out of Knute Rockne's book. Following the scheme initiated in football by the Notre Dame coach, he has laid his plans for using two complete nines of approximately equal strength in the Grapefruit league which has its local opening Wednesday with the Red Sox facing the St. Louis Cardinals.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—(P)—Coach Johnny Evers, of the Boston Braves was faced with a serious problem in fielding Wednesday. The Braves have played the St. Louis Cards and the Washington Senators in the last two days. They won the first and lost the second, but they deserved to lose both on the fielding record they turned in.

Paso Robles, Calif.—(P)—Donie Bush, manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, last year considered one of the most lenient mentors in major league baseball, is boss this year. He means what he says. Donie issued orders prohibiting gambling after complaints of hotel officials anent the littersed floors. Tauchner, Blankenship, Brickell and Swetonic evidently thought Donie's fingers were crossed when the sign was tacked up. Tuesday it cost each $50 for thinking so.

Winter Haven, Fla.—(P)—The so-called lowly Phillies with two one-sided ball games to their credit, were unusually peppy Wednesday when they made ready to welcome their hometown rival, the Athletics, in an exhibition game.

Clearwater, Fla.—(P)—Glenn Wright seems to have stolen the show at the Brooklyn Robins training camp. The big shortstop was subject of almost all the talking that was done here Tuesday. He is undergoing treatment for a shoulder injury, alleged to have been incurred before he was traded to Brooklyn by Pittsburgh. Wilbert Robinson has threatened to carry the case to John A. Heydler, president of the league, if Wright's shoulder doesn't respond to treatment.

West Palm Beach, Fla.—(P)—Already the Rookies know how many places are open for them on manager Dan Howley's St. Louis Browns. Howley set a numerical classification Tuesday of ten pitchers, seven infielders, five outfielders and three catchers for his June 15 limit of 25. The roster shows three pitchers, two catchers, two infielders and one outfielder are due to get the hooks.

Dallas, Tex.—(P)—The Chicago White Sox and Dallas Steers are scheduled to resume their baseball argument Wednesday, providing the weather permits. The Sox were rained out of a practice session for the second consecutive day Tuesday.

Chicago—Otto Von Post, Noway, outpointed Tom Heeney, New Zealand (10). My Sullivan, St. Paul, won on a foul from Clyde Chestain, Dallas, Tex. (2). Phil McClell, New York, outpointed Red Fitzsimmons, Wichita, Kans. (8). Browne Toman, Wichita, Kans., outpointed Alberto Palumbo, Italy (6). Paul Pantano, Chicago, outpointed Pat Keene, Oklahoma City (6).

Y. M. C. A. CAGERS LOSE TO REFORMATORY FIVE

Appleton Y. M. C. A. basketball team blew a couple easy follow-up shots Tuesday evening up at Green Bay reformatory and lost a 16 to 15 decision to Superintendent Eklund's guests. The prisoners also led at the end of the first half, 6 and 5.

With only a few minutes left to play, the locals had several chances to tie up the count but failed to put the ball through the hoop.

TUESDAY'S RESULTS
Coated Paper 25, Kimberly-Clark 13.
Citizens National Bank 23, Mul-fords 22.

THERE'S only one team on top in the Industrial Y. M. C. A. league Wednesday, for in a battle of the giants, the Coated Paper five of Appleton toppled the Kimberly-Clark team of Neenah, off the top rung. The score was 25 to 13. Both teams have been tied in loop standing for the last couple weeks. The second game on the evening's card saw the Citizens National Bank eke out a win over the Kaukauna Mulfords, 25 and 22.

A lone field goal by Gaertner was the all Neenah team could get in the first half excluding four free throws. The Coated outfit in the meantime picked up four field goals by Kneip, and one each by R. Reetz, and Pfeiffer. Strutz also picked up three freethrows and R. Reetz one. The score at the end of the period was 12 and 6 in favor of the Appleton five.

The second period was almost a rerun of the first, the Mulfords getting 12 points from five field goals and a couple free throws, and the loggers counting two field goals and four free throws. Strutz of the Appleton team was high point man with four field goals and five free throws.

In the second game the Mulfords waited too long to step out and try and beat the Citizens National bank team. The Kaukauna team counted 6 points in the first half, the Bankers getting 12. During the third quarter the Citizens bank team caged a couple short shots to keep their team out in front. The counters all were needed for the Mulfords staged a desperate rally in the fourth quarter and almost succeeded in tying the score with a couple long losses. Balsam with three field goals starred for the Mulfords and Hohenbeck for the Bankers.

Appleton boxing fans who remember when Eddie McGorty of Oshkosh was a big figure in boxing circles will be interested to know that the former middleweight was one of von Porat's seconds Tuesday night in Chicago when the Norwegian battled and beat Tom Heeney. McGorty recently took the middleweight winners of the midwest gloves tournament under his wing and is preparing them for a meet with New York city contestants.

VON PORAT WINS OVER TOM HEENEY

Norwegian Ends New Zealander's Quest for Heavy Title

Chicago—(P)—Otto Von Porat's galloping gloves pounded a requiem to Tom Heeney's heavyweight title aspirations Tuesday night and sent the New Zealand hard rock to the hospital for repairs.

Twelve minutes were required to close the inch-deep gash in Heeney's lip which Von Porat's right hand opened in the final round. The wound sent blood cascading down over Heeney's body and the New Zealander, realizing how desperate his plight must have appeared, told Referee Ed Purdy not to stop the fight, that he was all right.

Heeney, upon whose body Gene Tunney wrote his farewell to pugilism, last year, was a badly whipped man when the Norwegian puncher got through his ten rounds of work. Von Porat took seven rounds, lost two and held Heeney even in the other. To the surprise of most of the 9,000 spectators he not only out-slugged the New Zealander but out-boxed him most of the time.

The referee and two judges returned a unanimous verdict in favor of Von Porat. Heeney looked the best in the opening two rounds, but from that point on the Norwegian did the hurting. He used his left as a guarding rapier and shot right uppercuts to vary the monotony.

Michigan Had Better Defense Than Badgers

MADISON—(P)—With its first share in the Western conference title since 1924 buckled away, the University of Wisconsin basketball team has completed a schedule which found it victorious in 15 of 17 games played.

According to statistics compiled by the Associated Press, the Badgers in tying with Michigan for the league title is a team stronger, both defensively and offensively than the five last year, which missed a tie for the title only because of one-point defeat.

Wisconsin, in its 17 games, averaged 30.7 points a contest, and held its opponents to 22.7 points a game. In the conference, the Badgers averaged 28.5 points a game 1.2 points better than a year ago. Defensively the Badgers held their opponents to 22.75 points a game in the 12 conference contests .05 points better than their league-leading defensive mark last year, but poorer than the stout bulwark set by Michigan which held opponents to 21.25 points a game.

The Badgers in their five non-conference victories established a 36-point offensive mark, while holding opponents to 20.2 points a game.

Harold (Bud) Foster, Badger all-conference forward, led the team scoring with 150 points for the season, an average of nearly nine points a game. In the conference, Foster finished fifth among the individual scorers counting 95 points, an average of a fraction less than eight points a game.

Ed Chmielewski, Wisconsin's Big Ten guard, was the defensive leader, scoring 55 points, while facing the heaviest opposition scorer. He had only 13 fouls called against him during the conference season, an average of a fraction over one a game. His outstanding feat was stopping the dangerous Strickland of Indiana without a point, while counting himself.

SPEED: 68 miles per hour on wet pavement. RELIABILITY: The Challenger was brought to a dead stop in 27 feet at 30 miles per hour, in 55 feet at 40 miles per hour and 93 feet at 50 miles per hour. ACCELERATION: From standing start to 30 miles per hour in 6 seconds, to 40 miles per hour in 10 seconds, to 50 miles per hour in 15 seconds, and 80 miles per hour in 24 seconds. ECONOMY: At average driving speed 21.2 miles per gallon were obtained.

Above we show some of the local records, officially observed by newspaper men, which Essex the Challenger established during Nationwide Challenger Week. Owners here, and owners by thousands all over the country, have duplicated these tests, or, at least, verified the capacity of their own Essex the Challenger to reproduce any or all of these proofs.

IN FAST GET-AWAY—no car is excepted. IN SPEED—anything the road offers up to 70 miles an hour. IN HILL CLIMBING—against any car you choose. IN APPEARANCE—match it for smartness with costlier cars. IN EASE OF DRIVING—note smoothness of motor—ease of steering—roadability and effectiveness of brakes. IN ENDUR-

ANCE—60 miles an hour all day long is well within its range.

One million owners know the special advantages of the Super-Six. They are best qualified to compare the Essex the Challenger. To them we offer first opportunity to test the most powerful, the largest, roomiest, smoothest, easiest riding—most complete Essex ever built. But all motor-dom must be astounded that even with seventy-six notable improvements, the price is the lowest in Essex history—a price but little above the lowest-priced car on the market.

Famous Christians

It was during the reign of Augustus in Rome that Christ was born. In this time there were many great writers in Rome, Virgil, who wrote the splendid poem about Aeneas; Livy, the historian, and Horace. But the birth of Christ, in the far province of Syria was the epoch-making event of the reign of Augustus.

It was Augustus who, all unknowing, determined the place of the birth of Jesus, when he ordered a census or counting of the people. 3-5

Mary was on her way to attend the counting when Jesus was born in the little town of Bethlehem, not far from Jerusalem. 3-3

Augustus was the first of a line of emperors that ruled the world for three hundred years, during the beginnings of Christianity. Cruelties and persecutions attended the early years of Christianity. Christians built catacombs in which they buried their dead and met secretly during the years of persecution. 3-5

CHEST CLINIC FOR SCHOOL STUDENTS SET FOR NEXT WEEK

Womans Club and Anti-Tuberculosis Association Will Finance Affair

Kaukauna-Kaukauna high school students will be examined at a three-day free chest clinic of the Wisconsin Anti-Tuberculosis Association to be held here Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday, according to an announcement made Tuesday by Mrs. H. E. Thompson of the Kaukauna Woman's club. The clinic, which is to be exclusively for school children, will be financed jointly by the Woman's club and the W. A. T. A. Funds of both organizations are raised in the annual "Tuberculosis Christmas Seal" drive.

The clinic will be held at the high school with three Milwaukee physicians conducting the examinations. They are Dr. A. Pleyte, Dr. McInnis and Dr. Teschner. A number of local ladies and nurses will assist at the clinic. Several years ago a similar clinic was held at the high school and was successful.

"The modern tendency in the fight against tuberculosis is to center attention on the child rather than on the adult," said Mrs. Thompson. "In the modern program careful attention is paid to the nose and throat regions because it is now recognized that many defective conditions in this region break down the physical resistance of the child, which is his only protection against tuberculosis. Tuberculosis specialists declare that if they can locate and have corrected early every case of defective physical condition, and build up every underweight child with proper diet, fresh air and the combination of exercise and rest, they will definitely reduce the number of deaths in the later life of these children."

WIDOW AWARDED $5,000 FOR DEATH OF HER HUSBAND

Commission Orders Compensation for Man Killed by Air Hose

A verdict awarding Mrs. Emma Gastrock, Appleton, $5,027.50 damages for the death of her husband, Edward, 35, last September, was received here Tuesday by Attorney John A. Lonsdorf, from the Wisconsin Industrial Commission.

The verdict is against the Employer's Mutual Liability Insurance company which carried insurance for the Riverside Fibre and Paper company where Gastrock was employed when he was fatally injured by a blast from a compressed air hose in the hands of a companion.

A compressed air hose carrying a pressure of 50 pounds used for blowing lime from a freight car was applied to Gastrock, rupturing his bowels and causing his death a week later.

The commission found that the compressed air hose had been used regularly by the men and the foreman for blowing lime dust from their clothing. It pointed out that the employers had made no prohibition against the use of the hose for dusting clothes.

"It matters not whether the hose was applied to Gastrock's body in play or in accident," the commission's ruling said, "so far as compensation liability is concerned. Gastrock was not playing but was at the time engaged well within the course of his employment. His injury and death resulted proximately from the use of a dangerous piece of plant equipment."

Several similar cases which had been taken to the supreme court and decided in favor of the plaintiff were cited by the commission.

The commission pointed out that a considerable number of such air hose injuries have occurred in Wisconsin and all but one have proven fatal.

"An industry must use such a piece of equipment in a plant for the purpose of dust removal employees should not only know the hazard, but the nozzle of the hose should be equipped with some device to keep it a safe distance from a man's body," the committee said.

Mrs. Gastrock was awarded the full death benefit provided for by state law, $4,428 or four times the average annual wage being earned by her husband at the time of his death. She also was awarded $200 funeral expenses and $400 doctor, nurse and hospital expenses. The death benefit award is to be paid as follows: $374.14 in cash on March 15 and $22.85 per month until the balance has been paid.

The firm of Lonsdorf and Staidl represented Mrs. Gastrock.

SNOWBOUND ROADS BOOST MEAT PRICE

Unusual Weather Conditions Conspire to Increase Living Costs

A sharp increase in meat prices has been caused by the unusually cold weather and snow bound roads which made it difficult for breeders to get their cattle to market, according to Appleton marketmen. The increase, felt in the wholesale market last week, has been reflected in the retail trade.

An increase in meat prices is general at this time of the year but was unusually sharp because of unusual weather conditions.

Pork has increased 5 cents a pound, and some choice cuts have advanced 8 cents a pound. Dealers say, Beef has not changed much in price in this city but in some sections of the state has jumped 1 to 5 cents a pound over last summer's prices. Lamb is selling for 6 cents a pound more than two weeks ago, and poultry too has gone up.

Veal prices have advanced slightly, but it is expected the price will remain quite stable for the next few months, marketmen say. The price of beef will probably stay the same now until July when cattle are changed to pasture. Pork probably will continue the high price until fall.

NAME CAPTAINS OF TEAMS FOR C. OF C. EXPANSION PROGRAM

Appleton Businessmen Ask Support of Chamber's Efforts

The first meeting of majors and captains of the teams in the various divisions of the chamber of commerce expansion program, was held Tuesday afternoon at program headquarters.

Majors of the various divisions and the captains are as follows:

Major A. B. Scheurle—Captains: Louis Bonini, Edward F. Mumm, William M. Wright, B. J. McElhin, H. M. Rossmessl, George W. Lausman.

Major W. E. Smith—Captains: George H. Packard, J. A. Lonsdorf, H. B. Hallett, M. G. Clark, Ed H. Harwood.

Major E. A. Walthers—Captains: Earl G. Wichmann, L. L. Doefler, George F. Werner, Fred C. Carleton, J. Edward Murphy, Frank E. Wright.

Each of the captains now will name a number of lieutenants of workers and the groups then will organize for the active sales drive which begins Monday of next week. There will be six lieutenants under each captain.

The activity fund committee of the chamber which has been working during the last few days will meet at 5 o'clock Wednesday evening to make its first report. Members of the committee are soliciting the larger manufacturing companies in the city.

Statements of faith in the chamber of commerce expansion program and in the city have been obtained by directors of the campaign from two Appleton businessmen, George Beckley, secretary of Appleton Loan and Finance company has said:

"Appleton will not get along well unless there is some organization well-named and properly financed to promote the best interests of the city."

"Many a man owes all that he is, and all that he has today, to Appleton, where he has made his home during past years. We should not hesitate to put both our money and our personal service into such a campaign as the forward expansion program of the chamber of commerce. The wonder is not that the budget $17,700 a year is high, but that so much can be attempted by our chamber of commerce, in such a rapidly developing community, with so small amount of money."

"Subscribing to the forward expansion program of the chamber of commerce is not a donation; it is an investment in the future progress and prosperity of our own business."

The other statement is from J. P. Frank of the law firm of Frank, Wheeler and Pelkey. Mr. Frank's appeal for support of the campaign follows:

"Everyone familiar with the make-up of our city knows that there are many constructive policies needing the immediate attention of our citizenry. Now is the time when we must put a little time and money into this to see that a program is developed and put into effect."

"This should be a privilege and civic duty. It is not a gratuity. Our support would be in proportion to our individual interests in Appleton. We should not be content to merely take a minimum interest but should plan to participate to a maximum degree in a movement that is bound to pay big dividends. Our individual prosperity is dependent on the progress of the city in which we do business. Let's see that Appleton grows and prospers through an adequately financed chamber of commerce."

Fifth Lenten Address
The fifth Lenten address on the subject, Finding A Religion to Live By, will be presented by Dr. H. E. Feabody at the Congregational church Thursday evening. The service will begin at 7:30.

OUTAGAMIE FIELD AND TRACK MEET TO BE HELD ON MAY 10

Only Eight Elimination Contests to Be Staged This Year

Only eight elimination contests will be held among the rural schools of Outagamie county in preparation for the seventh annual county field and track meet to be staged in Appleton on May 10 instead of 20 as were held last year according to A. G. Meating, county superintendent of schools, who is making arrangements.

The reason for cutting down the number of elimination contests is to increase the competition at each meet and also to make it possible for Mr. Meating and his assistants to give personal supervision. The dates for the elimination contests have been set for May 2 and 3, four each day.

On May 2 the schools in the towns of Freedom, Kaukauna, Vandenberg and Buchanan will compete at the county normal school in Kaukauna; pupils of schools in the towns of Seymour, Osborn and Onelia will meet at Idlewild rural school; pupils of schools in towns of Cicero and Black Creek and the village of Black Creek will meet at the state graded school grounds in Black Creek; pupils of schools in Center and Ellington will meet at the school at Stephenville.

On May 3 the schools in the towns of Greenville and Grand Chute will meet at Badger rural school; pupils of schools in towns of Deer Creek and Maple Creek and Bear Creek village will meet at Bear Creek; pupils of the third and sixth districts of the town of Liberty, and the towns of Bovina and Maine and the village of Shiocton will meet in Shiocton; pupils of the first, second and fourth districts of the town of Liberty, towns of Dale and Hortonville will meet at Hortonville.

Previous to the elimination contests each school will hold a local meet to determine the winners who will take part in the central meet.

The contests this year will include five events for boys and five events for girls. Two changes have been made in the events. Instead of the rope climbing boys will chin the bar. The reason for making this change is that usually in practicing, various sized ropes are used and when the final meet is held, only one kind of rope is used, and some of the entrants were placed at a disadvantage. The other change is the elimination of the relay race. There has always been considerable confusion in the practicing for this race and therefore it was decided to drop it.

Events for boys this year will include chinning the bar, 100-yard dash, standing broad jump, running broad jump and baseball throw for accuracy. For girls there will be the balancing test, 75-yard dash, standing broad jump, base ball throw for distance and baseball throw for accuracy.

Mr. Meating is urging the schools to have "pep" meetings and to prepare yells and stunts to be used at the town and county meets.

What He Needs Is More Pounds of Real Man Power

That's what one solid he-man said about a skinny young fellow the other day.

This anemic, rundown fellow had somehow or other lost his manliness and didn't know where to find it.

Probably he had never heard of McCoy's Tablets and the wholesome good they are doing to just such fellows as he.

It's a tonic tablet is McCoy's and a mighty good one—it must be for thousands of doctors are prescribing the very same formula to bring back vigor, strength and energy to weak, rundown, pale, thin men and women.

And what thousands of physicians say is good ought to be good enough for any man or woman who is just dragging themselves thru life without vigor, energy or the keen ambition they ought to have—especially when McCoy's can be secured at any drugstore at trifling cost.

Why not try McCoy's Tablets for 30 days—just take them faithfully and watch results — If you don't feel wonderfully improved in health after 30 days get your money back. 50 tablets, 50 cents. Schilz Bros. or any drugstore in America.
